

'Les Blancs' scheduled for Fine Arts Theater

The Flonnie Anderson Theatrical Association (FATA) will present the drama, "Les Blancs," by Lorraine Hansberry at the Winston-Salem Fine Arts Center Workshop Theater.

Performances will be held on Friday, Nov. 30, and Saturday, Dec. 1, at 8:15 p.m. and on Sunday, Dec. 2, at 3 p.m. in the theater, located off Stadium Drive.

The play deals with the deep conflicts experienced by three African brothers as they face their own values regarding an impending revolution.

This powerful drama of the rising tide of native rebellion and European military might brings a different sort of theater to Winston-Salem -- very poignant and exciting.

Talented community people in the cast are Charlotte Blount as Dr. Goterling, Ken Connors as Dr. DeKoven, Roger Richardson as Major Rice, along with Amatullah, Hansel Hentz and Fleming El Amin. The part of Tshembe Matoseh will be played by Rudy Anderson. His brother will be played by Bruce Foriest and the youngest brother will be played by Tony Sealey. The typical Yankee reporter, Charlie Morris, will be played by Jim Austin. His wife, Madame Neilsen, will be played by Robin Voiers.

Tickets are available at the Arts Council and the Delta Arts Center. General Admission is $6. Student and senior citizen tickets are $3.50.

Civic League donates food to the needy

The Belview Civic League has been active since it was chartered in 1945. The club is comprised of a group of concerned citizens who live in and around the Belview community and are instrumental in taking care of the immediate needs of their community, such as the formation of the community watch program, the clean neighborhood projects, and the formation of the Boy Scout and Girl Scout groups in the area. The group also played a large part in getting a new recreation center and helped with voter registration during the recent elections. It makes annual contributions to the Negro College Fund and its members also are lifetime members of the local NAACP.

One project that the group is especially proud of is giving food
