fine defensive plays and converting them into points on the other end, the Spartans extended their lead to 62-31 at the end of three quarters. The final period was much of the same, with all the Mt. Tabor players getting playing time and each seemingly picking up where the starters left off.

"You have to find someone awfully tough to beat us," said Anderson, who is assisted by Tony Sarro in running the Spartan jayvee team. "We're about 10 or 11 people deep and you can't find too many jayvee teams with that much depth."

"We don't really have a starting five," he said. "We have several people that we use that are pretty much the same. We have Cunningham, Reece and George Porter at center. Our guards are Tyrone Lewis, who's a heck of an athlete, and Derrick Lewis and Richard Glover at guard. I think with those kids we can beat anybody."

Anderson said having such a strong junior varsity program will definitely pay dividends to the Spartan varsity.

"The jayvees are going to be very vital to us by next year," Anderson said. "We return all of our varsity players and, with about five of the kids on the jayvee moving up, you're going to see a much stronger team. You'll see Mt. Tabor's basketball program improve drastically."

"Our roles interchange. He (Christmas) can bring the ball up or I can. But I like to have the ball when the pressure's on."

So far, Shaw has handled the pressure well. He's averaging a team-high 12 points a game in addition to handing out just under four assists. His nearly 90-percent free throw accuracy rates among the best in the state.

Perhaps even more impressive is the fact that Shaw has only been playing organized basketball for less than three years.

"I didn't start playing ball in school until the 10th grade," he says. "Up until that time I had my mind set on being a journalist. I spent most of my time in the ninth grade working on the school newspaper."

At the advice of some of his friends, Shaw decided to try out for the team at Carver.

"I really didn't have any confidence in myself as far as going out for the team," he says. "A couple of the guys told me that I should go out. I worked on my game and I got to the point that I felt I could play a little bit."

Shaw made the team and started most of the games for Carver, as the Yellow Jackets romped to the 9-10 league championship. That experience, he says, gave him the confidence he needed.

"I was really inspired by Coach (Alfred) Poe," he says. "Coach Poe brought out the ball player in me. He took his time with me and it was a gradual learning experience."

Ever since, Shaw hasn't been afraid to go head to head with the best. Last year, he started most of the games for the Eagles as they went all the way to the state 4-A semifinals.

"Last year, I didn't think that we could really do as much as we did," he says. "We pulled together as a team and made the best of our season. That's what we have to do this year."

"I learned a lot from that experience," Shaw says. "Leadership is expected from me this year because we have so many young players. A lot of the freshmen and sophomores look up to me."

WERE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

FACTS OF LAW

By Gregory Davis

If you negligently permit your dog to stray onto a highway where the animal causes an accident, you could be sued by the injured parties.

A marriage annulment can be either civil or religious, but the religious one holds no legal effect, and the legal one holds no religious effect.

A person in the military does not become liable for acts done while obeying orders, unless the order was so unlawful that a reasonable person would recognize its illegality.

Stop-and-frisk laws allow a policeman to stop someone and demand an explanation of his actions. The officer may also conduct a limited search of his person at that time.

"If men recognize no law superior to their desires, then they must fight when their desires collide."
