East seniors have mixed feelings about graduation

By KAREN M. HANNON

With the close of the 1985 school year, graduating seniors are saying farewell to the underclassmen. These seniors have endured 12 years of school which they often describe as "boring and time-consuming." But after graduation, these same graduates realize that their education has not been a waste of time, but an accepted privilege.

Also, apprehension about their futures has developed among some seniors since the beginning of their junior years. Seniors have had to make the choice of which college to attend and what career to pursue.

Darren Funderburk, a graduating senior at East Forsyth, said, "Although the year has handed us many successes and a few disappointments, our attitudes have carried on the tradition that was set 23 years ago when the first East Forsyth students and faculty made this a school."

Attitudes like these make East Forsyth students proud. Senior Ben Bohannon commented, "We have that certain look about us, thusiasm by making their motto "The Class With All That Class." When others see us they know, just by looking at us, that we are Eagles. But more importantly, we are seniors!"

Also with this enthusiasm comes a feeling of sadness. Senior April Wolford explained, "I'm excited about graduating, but I'll miss all my friends after graduation. You never know when you might see them again."

These feelings are surely felt by seniors all over the school system. But seniors of East show their enthusiasm by making their motto "The Class With All That Class."

Another proud Eagle summed up the '84-'85 school year. "Some of our dreams were hampered by the hustle and bustle of a different kind of year, and although we didn't go to the top in everything we had hoped, we were still proud. We had a big challenge as we knew we would, and we met that challenge with 'all that class' that the '85 seniors possess."
