THE MOON
As some 600 million people in 49 countries watched on television, two American astronauts, Neil Armstrong and Edwin "Buzz" Aldrin, directed their spacecraft Eagle toward the moon. As the craft settled on a level landing spot, the dramatic words followed: "The Eagle has landed!" Once the astronauts had walked on the lunar surface on July 20, 1969, they planted in the ground a 30-star American flag. In earlier eras when explorers found new territory they claimed it in the name of their monarch. But because of treaties signed earlier, the United States did not claim the moon. Instead, the astronauts left a plaque saying, "We came in peace for all mankind!"
