

This is the best babysitter some parents can afford.

You're alone in the house. Mommy says she'll be home after dark. But every day, it seems like forever. Even the silence is frightening. You're eight years old, and the only one who'll hear you call for help is your dog. Who do you turn to?

For parents with daycare problems, one answer is the United Way. Last year United Way agencies gave 7,063 children in the Triad a place to go after school. But they can't do it alone. Your contributions really do make a difference.

Because what you give here, stays here. Won't you keep childcare in adult hands? HELP IS HERE.
