individual performances. Sturup made folk sit-up and take notice with wins in the 100, 200 and long jump. She also anchored NSU's 4 x 100 relay that placed second. Akinremi was equally on top of things, ruling matters in the open 400, 400 intermediate hurdles and as the anchor for A&M's No. 1 finish in the 4 x 400 relay.

As good as Omalade is, she had plenty help from some next of kin -- older sister Taiye, and twin sibling Omatayo. As a tandem, the Akinremis accounted for an abundant share of A&M's points. And speaking of points, one can't overlook Chinweoke Chikwelu's silver medal in the heptathlon, an event that black colleges traditionally don't compete in very often.

In retrospect, A&M had too many weapons to be overcome. But that didn't matter to Sturup, who caused a stir with her performances.

The Spartanettes freshman made a statement in the 100 when she beat teammate Carlene Robb (the defending outdoor champ) and A&M's Taiwo Aladefa (last year's runner-up). Sturup hit the finish line in 11.54 to win handily over Aladefa's 11.61. Robb finished sixth with a 11.95.

The 200 had the same results with Sturup strutting home in 23.55 to win by three strides. Shelly Beckford of A&M clocked 24.32 for fourth place and SAC's Valeska Brown was eighth (24.67).

In the open quarter, A&M flexed its considerable muscle with Omalade Akinremi leading the pack. Omalade duelled Omatayo for the gold and won out at 53.58 to Omatayo's 53.65. Taiye placed fourth (54.79) and Beckford was sixth (56.18). North Carolina Central's Carrie Davis had a time of 56.47 for seventh place.

Omalade's victory in the 400 intermediates came in much the same fashion as her finish in the quarter. This time, she outlasted Marsha Guiedo of Cal State-Los Angeles by less than half a step at the
