Founders' Day Speaker Calls On Deltas

Soror Marcia L. Fudge called upon Winston-Salem sorors and their Founders' Day guests to realize that this is the "season of change" and a time that challenges Deltas everywhere to rededicate themselves to the sorority's principles of public service.

Fudge, who is the national first vice president of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. acknowledged that members of the sorority already give much to their communities. But, she said, there is still much work to be done that Deltas must dig deeper and find creative ways of lending a helping hand. Those who have few volunteer hours to give, she said, simply can take a moment to pass on an encouraging word to a young person.

Fudge, an attorney in Cleveland, Ohio, said also that Deltas must move to the forefront in erasing misconceptions about Afro-Americans. Black Americans, she said, should openly challenge false and misleading reports about the black community. She said, too, that blacks must take responsibility for teaching their children values.

Fudge brought her keynote address to a rousing conclusion by borrowing from President Clinton's Inauguration ceremonies. Calling poet Maya Angelou one of her favorite authors, Fudge repeated Angelou's inaugural poem, "The Rock, the River and the Tree."

Also during the observance, Cathy Poole was named "Delta of the Year" and presented a plaque by Valerie Saddler.

Mayor Martha Wood, speaking on behalf of the city of Winston-Salem, brought greetings to the Founders' Day assemblage. In her address, she acknowledged the many contributions that Deltas are making to their community. But she encouraged chapter members to also seek membership on various city boards and advisory councils.

Veronica Jones, presented a handbell performance of "The Lord's Prayer." She was accompanied on the piano by Dr. Faustina Holman. Marilyn Roseboro, executive assistant to the chancellor at Winston-Salem State University, welcomed the Founders' Day audience to the campus and applauded the alumnae chapter on the important part it has played in the university's 100-year history.

Undergraduate sorors from Gamma Phi and Pi Omicron chapters presented musical selections for the occasion.

Delta Sigma Theta sorors attended the Founders' Day reception.

Salvation Army Club Receives Grant From Winston-Salem Kiwanis

The Salvation Army Girls' Club has received a $2,500 grant from the Winston-Salem Kiwanis Community Fund to help support a substance abuse prevention and education program for young girls and teenagers.

Now in its second year, the two-phase program, called friendly PEERsuasion, first recruits and trains a cadre of teenagers who commit to remain drug free and learn about substance prevention, leadership skills and communication techniques during 14 training sessions. These certified "PEERsuaders", in turn, teach and influence young girls 5 to 11 how to avoid substance use.

During the year the PEERsuaders also conduct events to expand awareness of substance abuse, including youth rallies and workshops.

The program served more than 400 Winston-Salem area girls in 1992. First-year funding came from the Crosby Foundation.

The Winston-Salem Kiwanis Community Fund, Inc. is a non-profit charity that supports a wide range of worth activities in the community. It is funded primarily with proceeds from projects conducted by the Winston-Salem Kiwanis Club, the city's oldest Kiwanis organization. The Salvation Army Girls' Club provides after-school and summer programs for girls ages 5 to 18 from its centers on Martin Luther King Jr. Dr. and in the Happy Hills Garden community, and through outreach programs in the community.
