The Forsyth County Convention will be held on April 17, at 9 a.m. at the Sawtooth Center.

Heading the agenda will be election of county officers to serve through the 1994 election cycle. The delegates to the convention will also be electing members to serve on the State Executive Committee, which is the governing body of the North Carolina Democratic Party. The convention will also elect local Democrats to serve as delegates to the 5th, 10th, and 12th congressional district conventions.

Congressman Steve Neal will be the keynote speaker to the convention. A number of legislative and local officials will also be in attendance.

Jackson said: "We are expecting a good turnout of Democrats across the county to be in attendance and look forward to a great year ahead for the Forsyth County Democratic Party."

Dudley Receives Entrepreneur Award

Greensboro businessman, Joe L. Dudley received another national honor last week when he was presented the medallion for Entrepreneurship by the Beta Gamma Sigma National Honor Society in Business and Management.

In a ceremony at North Carolina A&T State University, Dudley was cited for his national leadership in direct sales, for his service to humanity and for his status as a role model for black youngsters.

Making the presentation to Dudley, a graduate of A&T, were James Bearden, past national president of Beta Gamma Sigma, and Margaret Hicks, a member of the Board of Governors of the Society.

Dudley started his career more than 20 years ago by selling cosmetics door-to-door in Brooklyn, N.Y.

He currently operates Dudley's Products Inc., the largest black-owned manufacturing company in the Southeast. He also employs a contingent of several hundred salespersons nationally. He and his wife, Eunice, have been major contributors to Hayes-Taylor YMCA and the scholarship programs of Dudley High School, A&T University and Bennett College.

WSSU Offers Non-Traditional Course

The foreign language curriculum at Winston-Salem State University is placing new emphasis on preparing students to participate in a global society.

Recently, the Department of English and Foreign Languages added a foreign language teaching methodology course for current and future elementary and middle school teachers. A similar course for high school teachers was introduced in 1990-91. Yoruba, a west African language, was introduced in the last academic year.

According to Carol A. Lancaster Meeks, who coordinates the foreign language education area, plans are under way to offer more courses in Yoruba, other non-traditional languages and English as a second language in 1993-94.

"The need for well-trained foreign language teachers has increased dramatically during the past five years because of the ever-changing boundaries and countries of the world," Meeks said.

"Today it is no longer enough for a student at any level to know only English or just to have one or two years of a foreign language. Today's students and tomorrow's citizens will need to know two languages in addition to their native English."
