Pro Athlete Announces Fund Raiser

By MARK R. MOSS
Chronicle Staff Writer.

"This event is very special to me," said Ray Agnew Jr. "I grew up in the projects and I promised myself that if I ever made it, I was going to come back and help."

"Helping" is what Agnew, a native of the Twin City and professional football player for the New England Patriots, is doing. Last year, with $20,000 of his own money, he started a scholarship fund for youths living in the city's four public housing developments.

Last Friday, he was in town to announce the second annual "Community Day with Ray," which will be held on June 18 at the Lawrence Joel Veterans Memorial Coliseum

Annex. Starting at 4 p.m., there will be an autograph session that will be followed by an exhibition basketball game in which Agnew and other professional athletes will participate.

He was also in town to announce the kick-off of a fund-raising campaign for the scholarship fund. The goal is to raise $100,000.

NCSA Student Wins Concerto Competition

Sung Kim, a student at the North Carolina School of the Arts, is one of four winners of the Raleigh Symphony Orchestra 1992-93 Concerto Competition.

For his achievement, the pianist performed a movement of his winning concerto, Saint Saens' "Piano Concerto No. 2 in G," with the Raleigh Symphony Orchestra at Meredith College earlier this month.

Kim, 22, began studying piano in Korea at age 7, and quickly revealed his exceptional talent, placing first in citywide competitions in 1979, 1980 and 1982. He was also rewarded first prize in the Korean Young Pianists Foundation National Competition in 1981. In addition, in 1983, he won the Grand Prix in the state piano competition sponsored by The Korean Times.

Kim moved to the United States with his family in August 1983. They settled in Hickory, where Kim continued his studies with Rick Setzer before enrolling at the School of the Arts. Kim is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tawi Kim of Third Street, NE, Hickory.

Kim is currently a college junior in the School of Music, where he studies with Clifton Matthews. He is also a recipient of the Catawba County Scholarship for Excellence. This summer, as a soloist, he will tour Europe with the School of the Arts' International Music Program orchestra. Kim recently completed two years as pianist for the Korean American Presbyterian Church in Greensboro.

The Raleigh Symphony Orchestra Concerto Competition is a statewide competition for young musicians, ages 15-23, who are residents of North Carolina or in school in North Carolina.

Up to four winners are selected to perform a movement of their winning concerto with the symphony on a subscription concert.
