

Teacher of the Year Semifinalists Named

Nine semifinalists have been chosen for the 1993 "Teacher of the Year" in Winston-Salem/Forsyth County Schools. They are:

Linda Anthony, third grade academically gifted teacher at Hall-Woodward Elementary;

Carian Clary, kindergarten teacher at Jefferson Elementary;

Valderia Raynor, educable mentally handicapped teacher at Kemersville Elementary;

Ann Councilman, five and six-year-old readiness teacher at Konnoak Elementary;

Lynn Fellows, kindergarten teacher at Moore Alternative;

Joan Richardson, kindergarten teacher at Sherwood Forest Elementary;

Sandra Armstrong, second grade teacher at Union Cross Elementary;

Sara Fix, Advanced Placement calculus and computer science teacher at the Career Center;

Joi McLaughlin, English-as-a second-language teacher at Reynolds High School.

Candidates for "Teacher of the Year" are nominated by the faculty of each school.

Each of the teachers selected submits an application for the systemwide recognition. Semifinalists are observed in the classroom by a committee of teachers, administrators, parents and community representatives.

Finalists will be announced early in May.

The "Teacher of the Year" will be announced May 20 during the Chamber of Commerce Education Appreciation Luncheon at the Benton Convention Center and will represent the system in regional competition.

The winner will receive $1,000 and each finalist will receive $500 from the Winston-Salem/Forsyth County Excellence in Education Endowment Fund, which is managed by the Winston-Salem Foundation.

The "Teacher of the Year" is the oldest recognition program for classroom teachers and is sponsored on the national level by the Council of Chief State School Officers, Encyclopedia Britannica, and Good Housekeeping magazine.

CEOs to Speak At Junior Achievement Luncheon

What do Glenn Orr of Southern National Bank, Susan Engel of Champion Products, and Roy Johnson of Spring City Knitting have in common?

In addition to being CEOs of companies moving to Forsyth County, they are all speakers for the annual Junior Achievement luncheon.

Business people in Forsyth County are invited to celebrate another year of growth for Junior Achievement and Forsyth County at the luncheon to be held 12 p.m. followed by the three speakers. The cost for the luncheon is $25 per person or $200 per table of eight.

Orr, chairman and CEO of Southern National Corporation, has more than 24 years of banking experience to his credit, including positions with Wachovia Bank & Trust Company and Forsyth Bank & Trust Company.

He joined Southern National in 1982 and was named to his current post in November 1985. Orr received a master of Business Administration degree from the University of South Carolina and a Bachelor of Arts in business administration from Wofford College.

Engel, president and CEO of Champion Products, joined the Sara Lee Corporation directly from Booz Allen & Hamilton, a management consulting firm with offices in New York. Prior to that, she held various positions in marketing and personnel with J.C. Penney Company. She is the first woman to head a large company in the activewear industry. She received an MBA degree from the Harvard Business School and a bachelor of science degree in industrial labor relations from Cornell University.

Johnson, president and CEO of Spring City Knitting, spent 21 years with Fuller Brush in various locations before moving to Spring City Knitting in July 1990. His experience includes serving as chief financial officer for Fuller Brush followed by the positions as vice president of commercial products and then operations.

Johnson earned his MBA at Wake Forest University and a bachelor's degree in accounting from the University of Hartford in Connecticut.

Sara Lee Sponsors Youth Activities

Sara Lee Corp. was recently honored at the Southeast Regional Convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. In this convention, held in Fayetteville, Sara Lee sponsored the Youth and College Division activities, including a tribute to retired Executive Director Benjamin L. Hooks and the Leadership Breakfast for Presidents and advisors. The award plaque for Sara Lee Corp. reads: "For investing in the hopes, dreams and aspirations of the Southeast Region and believing that the return will be manifold."

In accepting the award for the company, Darnell Sharpless, manager of Human Resources for the Fleecewear Division of Sara Lee Knit Products congratulated the Youth and College Division on its organizational effectiveness and vision for the future.
