Coaching Changes Spark Rams' Victory

▲ Backup players propel WSSU to 35-20 win over Livingstone

A plethora of coaching adjustments coupled with sedulous execution propelled Winston-Salem State to a 35-20 lopsided victory over Livingstone last Saturday.

Entering the contest, the Rams were frequenting the campus infirmary. Regular starters Oronde Gadson and Shawn Colvin were not scheduled to dress, and All-CIAA performers Kelly Goodman and Richard Huntley were doubtful.

lot of pride and saw what I expected out of them."

The Rams amassed more than 400 yards of total offense for the game but were held to a season low six yards passing.

"I was not concerned with statistics or passing the ball," said Blount. "We were only concerned with controlling the ball and the game."

"The guys really responded and played an incredible second half."

—Coach Kermit Blount

"We knew that we were going to play a quick and aggressive football team," said Coach Kermit Blount. "We wanted to rest several of the guys so they would be available for the rest of the season."

After falling behind 14 points in the first half, Blount exercised some control.

Back-up quarterback Jamie Edmons, running back Richard Huntley and Kelly Goodman were inserted into the game. Regular defensive tackle John Robinson was switched to noseguard to give Wesley Williamson a breather.

"We were flat on offense, and we lacked consistency," said Blount. "We wanted to apply more pressure on the quarterback."

But to the fighting Bears' chagrin, the changer worked.

"At halftime, the coaches made some major adjustments," said Stevenson. "The guys really responded and played an incredible second half."

Blount concurred. "I think at half time the guys saw another side of me," said Blount. They showed a

The Rams offense did not suffer. Richard Huntley led the Rams in rushing with a season-high 154 yards, and newcomer Jeff Myatt added 82 yards.

"Jeff emerged as a threat," said Blount. "He will take some pressure off Huntley."

The Rams defense also stopped Rob Clodfelter, last year's CIAA rushing leader. Clodfelter was held to a dismal 30 yards rushing.

William Trent led the Rams on defense with 15 tackles. Offensive lineman Jamie Rivers and running back Richard Huntley were selected by positions as CIAA Players of the Week.

This Saturday, the Rams travel to Fayetteville to take on a resurgent Bronco team. Last year the Rams whipped FSU 34-8, but Blount admits that the Broncos will be tough.

"They are really quick, but we are going to stick with our original game plan," he said. "We are going to try and mix it up."

Richard Huntley is the CIAA Running Back of the Week.

Jamie Rivers was named CIAA Offensive Lineman of the Week.

Black Pro Golfers Urge Students to Stay in School

By SAMUEL G. PURYEAR JR.
Special to the Chronicle

"Stay in school and go to college because you can do anything you want to do, if you put your mind to it," was the lucid message that radiated around the Winston Lake Golf Course practice range.

Senior tour members Charlie Sifford and Walter Morgan, who are in town early preparing for the Vantage Championship, shared their provident philosophy with about 80 spectators on Monday.

Sifford and Morgan have issued this challenge for many years.

Sifford has been associated with professional golf for more than 40 years. In 1992, he completed his book Just Let Me Play, which chronicled many of the noisome events he faced while on the regular tour. But he thinks that things can change.

"The major problem with our kids isn't ability but developing an interest in the game," said Sifford. "Many of these kids play basketball and baseball, but they don't have anyone to take them to the golf course."

Morgan agreed. Morgan spent the majority of his clinic time dealing with motivation, golfing aides and teaching course etiquette.

Morgan and Sifford account for about half of the Senior Tour's black participants. As of 1993, the Senior Tour has only five blacks playing on a regular basis. Jim Dent, Lee Elder and Charlie Owens are the other members.

Calvin Pete was the newest African American scheduled to participate on the tour but cited some racial inadequacies and isn't scheduled to participate in this year's events.

"Hopefully this clinic will motivate more kids to stay in school," said Ernest Morris, Winston Lake Golf Course professional. "If they do, they will be able to explore other opportunities in the world."

One group is extremely happy that a sports marketing firm landed the two professionals.

"The kids are getting some needed exposure and a feel for the game," said James Blackburn, a representative from the Winston-Salem Boys Club.

Blackburn has invested an interest in his kids. He has taken kids in the past to the Crosby summer golf programs and is scheduled to take a group to this year's Vantage Championship at Tanglewood. The Vantage begins tomorrow and continues through Sunday.
