

Amid Homecoming's Pageantry

The former Ram quarterback laughed and remembered: "I could never go to the parties because of game preparation and it isn't much different now. But I will enjoy it from a coach's standpoint."

Toni Rheddick, who works in the Alumni and Title III office at the school, is a graduate of Rutledge Business College, but is really looking forward to homecoming.

"Everyone shares the school spirit this week," she said. "And they all can forget their troubles... at least for the weekend."

A special event that Rheddick said she will always look forward to is the Ol' School House Party on Saturday night.

"I met my husband-to-be there last year," she said.

"And I look forward to seeing my special friend, Patricia Mobley Hairston, who dresses in red and white all week."

Hairston, secretary for the Alumni Association, said this week also meant a lot of work for her. And for Kevin Manns, the sports information director.

"But it's a chance to see family and friends," said the 1990 Guilford College graduate. "My brother Russell Manns is a 1988 (WSSU) graduate who now works for Pepsi in Detroit. I get to see him with an unusual amount of excitement involved."

Nikki Adkins, a sophomore from Richmond, Va., said simply: "It's a celebration for everyone to get together and have a good time."

Senior James Hampton was a bit more solemn in his comments.

"It's a gathering of the Ram family," he said, pointing out that his aunt, Carline Hampton, is a 1963 WSSU graduate.

Manderline Scales, who has worked at Winston-Salem State for 25 years, was emphatic in saying: "It means big work for me."

Scales is chairman of the Homecoming Campus Committee, who proudly was telling her committee that the Saturday parade through downtown Winston-Salem will have 15 to 20 floats as well as 10 bands.

Scheduled to appear are bands from Norfolk State, University of the District of Columbia, Ballou High School band from Washington, D.C., as well as bands from Maryland, Greensboro, Charlotte and Winston-Salem.

Gaines to Be Honored

Winston-Salem State University will honor legendary basketball coach Clarence "Big House" Gaines with the title Professor Emeritus during the 101st Founder's Day observance tomorrow at 9:45 a.m. in the Kenneth R. Williams Auditorium.

Gaines retired this summer after serving nearly 50 years as head basketball coach, athletic director and professor and chairman of the Department of Physical Education.

The featured speaker is the Rev. Kelly O.P. Goodwin, pastor emeritus of Mount Zion Baptist Church. The public is invited to attend.

WSSU Holds Food Drive

Winston-Salem State University is sponsoring a community food drive in observance of the 12th Annual World Food Day.

Donations of canned and dry goods may be brought to the Roadway Express trailer, at the Cromartie Street entrance of the campus. Food items will be accepted from Monday through Friday until Oct. 15.

Donations may be dropped off between the hours of 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Contributions will also be accepted at Bowman Gray Stadium during the WSSU's Homecoming football game.

The public is invited to join in a campus World Food Day Rally at 10 a.m., Wednesday, Oct. 13, near the Campus Police Office behind the Kenneth R. Williams Auditorium.

The food will be donated to charitable organizations to feed those who are most in need. World Food Day, first observed in 1945 of the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization.
