never looked back after Bonner's first score, a 6-yard run. Mineral Springs would add another score on a 35-yard pass from Travis Scott to Bonner. By the time Biddle scored, it was too late. Mineral Springs held on until the final horn sounded.

The Vikings PeeWee team also dealt a loss to the Packers, this score being 18-12. Ricardo Hughes capped a 127-yard performance with a pair of touchdowns to help stave off a Packer comeback. The Vikings made it a three-game sweep for the Mineral Springs program by defeating Lewisville 20-7 in the Junior Midget division.

holdovers from the team that competed in Tallahassee, Florida and came home national champions. But the players believe that this year's edition is probably better than last year's squad.

"We're not as fast, but we are more powerful than last year," said tailback Jacob Hopkins, one of the few players that returned. "This team works hard, and that will help especially when we win another national championship."

The difference between Pfafftown and several other teams, McDaniel said, is in the conditioning level. During a normal Packers practice, the players endure a strenuous routine that calls for each player to drag tires around the field as well as extended periods of 50-yard dashes, sometimes lasting as long as a half-hour.

"That's the difference in our teams. Most of the other team's players are tired in the third quarter, but we're still going strong," said guard Phillip Scales.

That conditioning pays off on the other side of the football, where the Packers defense usually mauls the opposition. Pfafftown has held the opposition to a mere 79 yards on offense and no scores in the second half. "These kids love to hit each other in practice," said line coach Keith Kaiser. "I've never seen so many nine and ten-year olds that we have to beg not to hurt each other in practice."

The defense has more than made up for the shortcomings of an inexperienced Pfafftown offense.

"This year, we can't score as many points as we would like to, but we have when it counted," said quarterback Michael Drum. "The only thing that held us back has been penalties because there has not been as much competition from other teams."

One thing has counted for the players has been the hometown fans, who cheer loudly when a player scores a touchdown or boos when one their players are hit hard.

"The one thing I love about our team is that the fans treat everyone on the team like family," said Michael Drum's father, Thomas. "We all come out here and pull for our team, not my son or his nephew or whoever's out there."

Pfafftown's road to play in the national championship came a lot easier when the East Winston Tiny Indians were upset by the Grayhounds 13-12. However, the players were not discounting the next opponent by looking ahead to California, where this year's game is held.

"We've worked hard this year so we're going to play it one game at a time," said tailback Reggie Thomas. "But if we don't win it all again this year, we'll all be mad."
