During the workshop, the children will practice once a week on a certain segment of their game. English wants the children to concentrate on that particular part of the game when they play throughout the week. The purpose is not to inundate them with learning so many fragments at once.

"Not only do we teach them the basics, we also do conditioning drills and practice other things, so it would be too much to ask them to learn everything in one stretch," English said.

The practices are also limited in terms of length. Because of other groups using the gym and other activities, the youngsters only meet on one day. The practices are especially compact when the younger players arrive at practice at 4:15 p.m. and have to leave the center before 7 p.m.

English and Irby have complete control of the workshop and the games. Each child will play at least one quarter during the games, which are officiated by English. The youths also learn the importance of teamwork and communication during the workshop.

"We have to clap two times when a player makes a free throw and only once when he misses it," said Michael Key, 8.

English said that there has not a problem finding kids who want to play. In past years, more children will slowly become interested in playing at the center once the intramural season starts.

"Children just love the game of basketball, so we can find some kids," English said. "But once we get them here, we can show them a great time they can have here as opposed to being out on the street at that time."

"I like playing here, so I'll be playing when the season starts up," said eight-year old Marquis Crosby, who played last year.

Packers End Season With 13-7 Win

By MICHAEL JOHNSON

The Pfafftown Packers Jr. Pee-Wee team broke open a scoreless first half to finish their Pop Warner season at 12-0-1 by defeating the Raleigh Braves 13-7 at Ravenscroft Stadium Saturday.

The Packers, who were not invited to defend their 1992 national title in this year's nationals held in Santa Clara, Calif., completed its second undefeated season as the bowl game became the players' substitute for a national title.

substitute for a national title.

"We were disappointed we weren't selected, but we feel very good about what these players have accomplished," Packers coach Mark McDaniel said. "I am very proud of the way these young men took the disappointment. Their ability to handle adversity and bounce back is the biggest reason they have been so successful the past two years."

The Packers took charge in the opening minutes of the second half.

After pinning the Braves deep in their territory, the Packers took over at the Raleigh 23. Jacob Hopkins scored three plays later on a 15-yard run to put the Packers ahead 6-0.

The Packers scored on its next possession, highlighted by a series of five 11-yard runs. Hopkins capped the drive with an 11-yard burst that put the Packers ahead 13-0. Pfafftown finished the contest with 268 yards rushing, led by Hopkins' 12 carries for 83 yards. Reggie Thomas had 11 rushes for 74 yards.
