Jessica Faulk Crowned Miss Zeta Princess

Jessica Faulk, a fifth grade student at Rural Hall Elementary School, was named Miss Zeta Princess, Saturday, May 27, during the Fourth Zeta Cotillion, a formal presentation of young ladies in grades three through six. The Cotillion, sponsored by the Nu Tau Zeta (Kernesville) Chapter of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc., was held in the Dillard Auditorium of the Anderson Center at Winston-Salem State University.

Jessica is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Faulk. An accomplished musician, she performed a piano medley for her talent presentation.

First runner-up in the Cotillion was Raylyn Mitchell, a nine-year-old student at Walkertown Elementary School. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glasco Mitchell. She performed an original dramatic presentation. Angelia Janel Ray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Ray, was second runner-up. A sixth grader at Atkins Middle School, Janel sang the Mississippi Children's Choir's version of "His Eye Is On The Sparrow." Both Raylyn and Janel received standing ovations for their presentations.

Other members of the court were Timeka Couthen, daughter of Ms. Rayponzia Couthen and Mr. Gregory Cain and granddaughter of Ms. Ruby Cain; Laurie Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Davis; and LaToya McConnell, daughter of Mrs. Tometta Ervin and Mr. Darryl McConnell and the stepdaughter of Mr.

Jerry Ervin. Timeka sang the contemporary gospel song "I Still Hear You Calling My Name;" Laurie played a classical piece on the clarinet; and LaToya led the audience in singing "Lift Ev'ry Voice and Sing."

Also present for the occasion were Lauren Chavis, the first Miss Zeta Princess and Julia Scott, Miss Zeta Princess 1993, who assisted with the coronation. Marshals for the evening were Master Daniel Lyons, Jr. and Master French Shannon, IV.

During the Cotillion, contestants donned formal attire for an original dance choreographed by Ms. Regeania Singletary. Chapter members Juanita Penn and Rosalyn Evans coordinated the Cotillion and Soror Avis Bond was mistress of ceremonies. Proceeds from the program will be used to fund the Susie S. Hilliard Book Scholarship at Winston-Salem State University.

Signs of Success

was to be consistent. That gave a great deal of stability to the environment.

Many of these students have problems in school because teachers don't have the time to really get involved to try and understand them. Gaither said.

"They just needed a little tender loving care," Gaither said. "It was obvious that they just needed someone to spend some quality time with them."

Because of how a student acts and if he dresses a certain way he gets labeled," Shore added. "Rather than just the exterior, we need to look at the interior."

Alberta McMillian, education and training director at the Winston-Salem Urban League, said these two men were ideal for Project Success.

"They are excellent motivators, role models and teachers for these young people," she said. "They have experiences that they have lived and they can share them with these young people."

Gaither and Shore said they really enjoyed working with the young people at Griffith and hope to do it again next year.

Shore added that he hopes the program will get more funding so that it may expand.

Johnson said she is definitely looking to keep this program going and just reaching one student makes all the difference.

"If I can reach just one child, then I'm happy," she said.

There are three youngsters in the program that Gaither said he grew very close to. The evidence is in the pictures he has framed of him with each one of them and placed on a desk in his office.

Shore said by treating the youth in this program and others like one of his own he has become like a father-figure to many.

"There are about 20-30 kids out there who might call me Daddy," he said. "And that feels good."
