

King to Address N. C. State's Martin Luther King Festival

Yolanda King, daughter of the slain civil rights leader, will be the guest speaker at the 11th Annual Martin Luther King Jr. Cultural Festival at North Carolina State University on Saturday, Jan. 20.

Festival activities, free and open to the public, will take place from noon to 5 p.m. at the university's McKimmon Center, at the corner of Gorman Street and Western Boulevard.

King's address will focus on the festival

theme, "Living the Dream" Empowering the Community and Involving Our Children to Make a Difference."

She will speak during the optional 5:30 p.m. dinner at the University Student Center Ball Room.

The eldest daughter of Coretta King and the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., King has been in the midst of the struggle for human rights all of her life.

She is an actress, producer-director, and lecturer in her own right, and is committed to using her talents in service of humanity by combining advocacy for social change with her artistic pursuits.

To that end, she co-founded and co-directs NUCLEUS, a company of performing artists now touring the country with an original production, "Stepping into Tomorrow."

She also is involved with TRACKS, a multimedia production celebrating the life and philosophy of her father.

WE BELIEVE IN THE DREAM...

"I have the audacity to believe that peoples everywhere can have three meals a day for their tired bodies, education and culture for their minds, and dignity, equality and freedom for their spirits. I believe that what self-centered men have torn down, men other-centered can build up. I still believe that one day mankind will bow before the altars of God and be crowned triumphant over war and bloodshed, and nonviolent redemptive goodwill will proclaim the rule of the land. And the lion and the lamb shall lie down together and every man shall sit under his own vine and fig tree and none shall be afraid. I still believe that we shall overcome."

Keep the Dream Alive.

"If you lose hope, somehow you lose the vitality that keeps life moving, you lose that courage to be, that quality that helps you to go on in spite of it all. And so today I still have a dream."
