Club holds holiday celebration

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

A very festive occasion was shared by the 25th Street Community and Benevolence Club at the Martin L. King Recreation Center in December.

The tables were beautifully decorated with the usual Christmas theme by the Social Committee.

Each member invited friends, who were special guests. President Martha G. Jones greeted the members and guests. Evelena Clayborn, incoming chaplain, led the audience in invocation and prayer. Jessie Watson, outgoing first vice president and program chairman, gathered the gifts for everyone to receive. Each of the special guests and birthday members received a gold dollar and birthday cake.

After so much fun it was time for the installation of the 2001 officers. Outgoing president Martha G. Jones was the installing officer.

Officers for 2001 are: Mary

Hall, president; Sarah Hamlin, vice president; Martha G. Jones, recording secretary and news reporter; Mary Warren, financial secretary; Glenola Parham, assistant secretary; Mary Hopkins, treasurer; Evelena Clayborn, chaplain; Colesta Glenn, social chairman; Jessie Watson, historian.

The new officers pledged to serve the club with integrity and dedication.

Everyone enjoyed the beautiful and tasty foods.

Salem Academy receives grant

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

The Edward E. Ford Foundation of Washington, D.C., has awarded a $50,000 grant to the Salem Academy endowment for faculty salaries.

Recent surveys show that parents, students and teachers have a positive and consistent view of Salem Academy. Alumnae participation in annual giving is relatively high according to National Association of Independent Schools (NAIS) data. The students show a high level of trust and respect for a faculty whom they view as competent and responsive. The faculty/student relationships are clearly recognized as important and significant by both faculty and students.

A report prepared by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS) reaccreditation review committee in 1996 commended Salem Academy for a faculty who demonstrate commitment, expertise and loyalty. The committee especially noted that academy teachers exhibit passion for their subject areas, and small classes allow subject areas to be taught in an optimal environment. The report recommended that the academy continue to work toward providing faculty compensation that is competitive with local independent and public schools.

Dr. Wayne Burkette, head of the academy, acknowledges the significance of the grant. "The value of this grant exceeds the $50,000 and the matching dollars it will generate. The grant has been awarded following a rigorous and competitive process, and it truly represents an endorsement of Salem Academy and the academic program by an independent organization that knows and understands independent, secondary education. We are grateful for the support of the Edward E. Ford Foundation."

The challenge grant requires two to one in matching gifts totaling $100,000 by June 30.

Salem Academy students' average SAT scores are consistently 200 points higher than the national average for girls. Academy seniors also received more than $2.1 million in college scholarship money for the past two years. Salem Academy is a college preparatory boarding and day school for girls in grades nine through 12. Founded in 1772 by Moravian settlers, Salem is the nation's oldest educational institution for women.

Students to represent N.C.

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

WASHINGTON - Natalie Russell and Crystal Sanders will serve as N.C. delegates to the U.S. Senate Youth Program, Sen. John Edwards announced last week.

"I am pleased and proud that such outstanding students will represent North Carolina," Edwards said. "I'm excited to see young people get the opportunity to come to Washington to learn first-hand how our democracy works."

Russell and Sanders will join 102 high schoolers from across the country in Washington, D.C., March 3-10. They will spend the week learning about government through visits to the Senate, House of Representatives, Supreme Court and Pentagon and through policy speeches by senators and cabinet members.

Each state and the District of Columbia select two delegates and two alternates to participate in the yearly program, created by the Senate in 1962. Delegates receive an all-expense paid week in Washington, D.C., and a $2,000 college scholarship courtesy of a grant from the William Randolph Hearst Foundation.

Russell, a senior at Mount Tabor High School in Winston-Salem, serves as a student council representative and is active in German Club and the German National Honor Society. She represented North Carolina as president pro tem of Tar Heel Girls State and as speaker pro tem of the YMCA N.C. Youth Legislature. She plans to major in political science and history in college.

Turner, of Clayton, is president of student government, secretary of National Honor Society and a member of the Youth Council at Clayton High School. She served as a page in the N.C. House and Senate and as governor at Tar Heel Girls State. She plans to study public policy and history in college.

Meredith Fulgum of Rocky Mount Senior High School and Fred Martin of Wake Forest-Rolesville High School were chosen as North Carolina's alternates to the Senate Youth Program.

Clemmons woman wins $10,000 from iWon.com

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

IRVINGTON, N.Y. iWon.com, one of the fastest growing websites in history, awarded its $10,000 daily prize to Tina Ledford of Clemmons, N.C. As an iWon user, Ledford, 30, became eligible for a chance to win the site's various cash rewards simply by using iWon for things like searching the Web, reading the news, checking the local weather, sending and receiving e-mails, tracking stock quotes, etc.

The first and only Internet portal to award its users with guaranteed chances to win cash prizes ranging from $10,000 to $10 million, iWon has been giving away $10,000 every day since its October 1999 launch. In addition to the $10,000 daily cash giveaway, iWon also awards 30 weekly prizes of $1,000, a monthly $1 million prize and an annual $10 million prize on Tax Day.

Through the three-tiered "Refer-A-Friend" program, iWon users will also earn cash prizes, up to $1 million, if someone in his or her referral network wins a daily, weekly, monthly or annual prize. BigBallot.com, a neutral third party, administers all iWon sweepstakes. To date iWon has given away more than $30 million in cash prizes.

When asked what she plans to do with her iWon.com $10,000 prize, Ledford said, "I plan on paying off some bills and investing the rest for our son's education!"
