things these kids may be going through. So, this was very special to me. I even had a couple of flashbacks when I walked on this field again."

Camp sessions included football instruction and educational workshops presented by NFL veterans and collegiate standouts. The two-day camp concluded on Tuesday, with instructions and speeches from former NFL players A.J. Nicholson (Cincinnati Bengals) and Anthony Pleasant (New England Patriots). Several Winston-Salem State and Wake Forest players also gave instruction during the camp. Various area high school and Tiny Viking coaches were also very instrumental in the success of the Crowell football camp.

"Anytime you can come and talk to the kids to give them some direction it's special," said former New England Patriot defensive lineman Anthony Pleasant, who played 14 seasons in the NFL. "I especially love the opportunity to get to speak with some African American kids. The best thing about this camp is that they get to meet professional athletes. I didn't get a chance to do anything like that when I was younger. So, I'm really enjoying everything."

Crowell's third annual football camp. The previous two took place at Forsyth Country Day and North Forsyth. Tiny Vikings representatives hope to continue the partnership with the Crowells for years to come. "We really do," said Stowe. "I think this camp will continue to be a success. We'd love to continue to provide this camp for these kids."

Angelo and Germane Crowell both graduated from North Forsyth High School and attended the University of Virginia. Younger brother, Juwon Crowell, graduated from Carver and East Carolina. He's presently negotiating with several squads to participate in summer camps. Angelo Crowell was named the Defensive MVP for the Buffalo Bills this past season. Angelo Crowell is reportedly about to sign a multi-year contract with the Bills.

Wake finishes 45th in Director's Cup standings

CHRONICLE STAFF REPORT

Wake Forest finished 45th in the United States Sports Academy Director's Cup standings for the 2007-08 season. The Demon Deacons tallied 445.75 points over the course of the year.

The fall semester proved to be the most productive for the Deacs as teams tallied 278 points and stood in sixth place overall. The standings include 279 institutions which compete in Division I athletics.

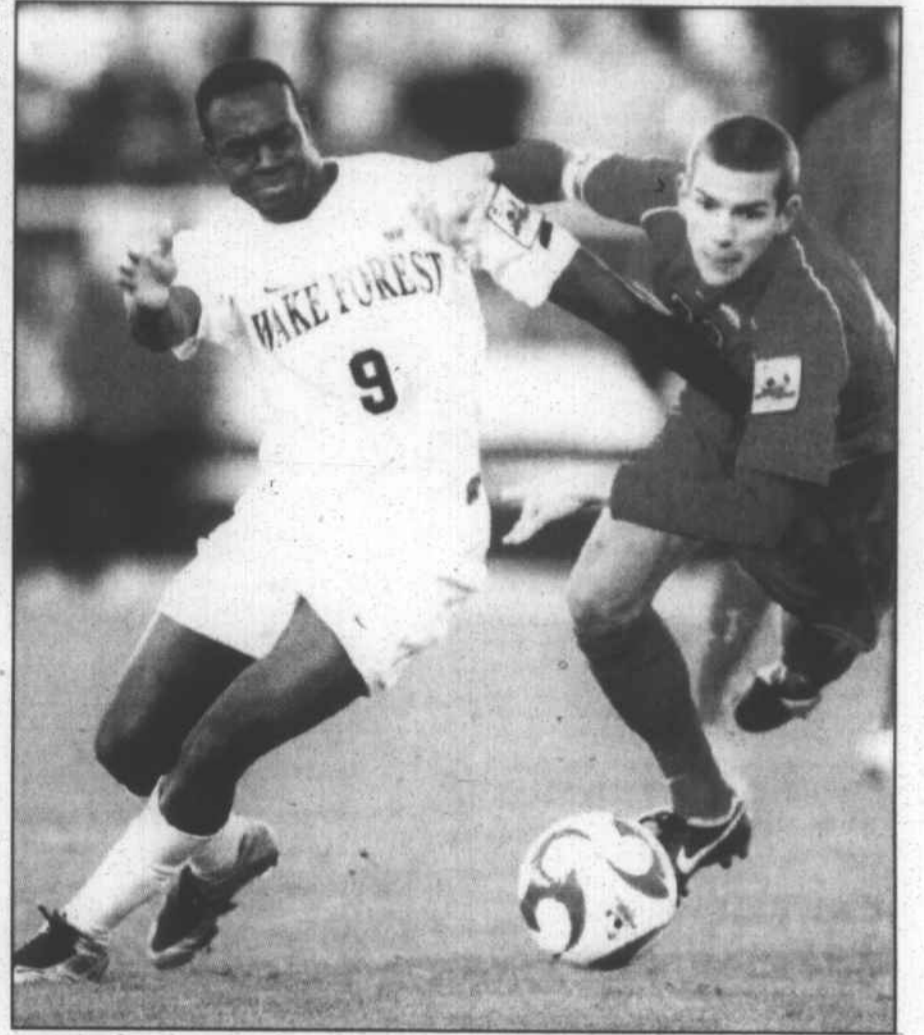

The Director's Cup is presented annually by the National Association of Collegiate Director's of Athletics (NACDA), United State Sports Academy and USA Today. Stanford was awarded its 14th consecutive Director's Cup as it tallied 1461 points. Points in the Director's Cup standings are given based on each institution's finish in up to 20 sports from the year, including 10 men's sports and 10 women's sports. Wake Forest has 16 athletic teams.

UCLA finished second followed by Michigan, Arizona State, Texas, Florida, California, LSU, Penn State and Georgia to round-out the top 10. North Carolina was the highest finishing Atlantic Coast Conference team. The Tar Heels ended the year in 14th place.

Wake was coming-off a 2006-07 season which witnessed the Deacs' best Director's Cup finish in school history; a 23rd place finish. Wake Forest men's soccer produced the highest point total of the season as its National Championship gave the Deacs 100 points for the fall semester. Women's field hockey followed with 83 points, thanks to its Final Four appearance in the NCAA Championship.

The women's golf team's tenth-place finish at the NCAA Championships gave Wake the most points from any of its spring teams with 66.75.
