

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

All current and former Pond residents are invited to attend. The Pond got its name when the entire wall of the reservoir that overlooked the downward path of North Trade Street collapsed in 1904. Since then, the name "Pond" has been associated with the Trade Street area, which extends over to Seventh Street and includes

This year, event attendees will have access to the rec center's track, picnic shelter and swimming pool. There is also access to a large shady area, so everyone is encouraged bring tents, chairs, grills and picnic baskets. This year's t-shirts will be available. Proceeds from sales

The spirit and resolve of educators dedicated to public education was stimulating. The North Carolina delegation served as host to teacher representatives from Indonesia. Local Educator Rodney Ellis, vice-president of the N.C. Educators Association, coordinated the exchange hosting component. There were over 200 delegates from North Carolina. All local participants were recognized as members of the Representative Assembly (RA). Tripp Jeffers, president of the Forsyth County Association of Educators, treated the local members, who also included Mildred Griffin and Fleming El-Amin, to a delicious lunch. All the local members were excited to return home to continue demanding quality education for all public school students and professional treatment for all educators.
