

James Jenkins, right, gives a CitiLug to Randal Pinkett.

Jenkins discusses his invention at national conference

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

Winston-Salem's James Jenkins took part in a panel discussion at the recent annual conference of the National Black MBA Association.

Jenkins is the founder and president of Innovative Consumer Products and the director of sales at OnceLogix. He is also the inventor of the "CitiLug," a hands-free shopping bag carrier. Jenkins was one of the inventors featured on the PBS show "Everyday Edisons."

At the New Orleans MBA convention, Jenkins was a panelist for a session entitled "Why Didn't I Think of That?" He talked about how he transformed his invention from a concept to reality. The session was moderated by Randal Pinkett, a winner of the NBC show, "The Apprentice." Other panelists included 13-year-old Jordan Culpepper of Chicago, the recipient of Black Enterprise's 2009 Teenpreneur of the Year Award and CEO of Buttons By Jordan; and Cleveland's Phil Davis, the CEO of iCubed International and inventor of "the Iwavecube," a mini microwave.

Jenkins and his wife, Regina, have three children - Jewell, Angell and Josiah. The family are active members at St. Peter's Church and World Outreach Center, which is under the leadership of Dr. J.C. Hash Sr. and First Lady Joyce Hash.

From left: Robert Greer, Larry Little and Nelson Malloy were members of the Winston-Salem Chapter of the Black Panther Party.

Events will celebrate 40th anniversary of Winston-Salem's Black Panther Party

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

The 40th anniversary of the founding of the Winston-Salem Chapter of the Black Panther Party will be celebrated on Sunday, Oct. 11 with a grand opening celebration for an exhibition about the Black Panthers at the Delta Fine Arts Center, 2611 New Walkertown Road. The opening event will be from 3 - 5 p.m. After the opening, the exhibit will be on display at the gallery through Nov. 8.

The Martin Luther King Jr. Recreation Center, 2001 Pittsburg Ave., will host a community celebration honoring the legacy of the Winston-Salem Black Panther Party on Nov. 7 from 1-6 p.m. All former party members, community workers and supporters are encouraged to attend.

Formed in 1969, the Winston-Salem Chapter of the Black Panther Party won national acclaim for starting a number of programs designed to meet the needs of poor people. The party's initiatives included the Children's Free Breakfast Program, the Free Liberation School, which provided after school tutoring; and the Joseph Waddell People's Free Ambulance Service.

For more information, call Robert Greer at 336-995-2187; Julius Cornell at 336-761-5056; or John Moore at 336-723-2732.

Rev. Lartey will speak on Tuesday.

Bethlehem kicks off revival with homecoming service

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

Bethlehem Missionary Baptist Church, 1711 North Claremont Ave., will begin its Homecoming and Annual Fall Revival on Sunday, Oct. 4 at 3 p.m. with Bishop John Parks and the New Hope Missionary Baptist Church family.

The revival starts on Monday, Oct. 5 with guests the Rev. Charles Gray and the Mt. Olive Baptist Church family. On Tuesday, Dr. Seth Lartey and the Goler Memorial AME Zion congregation will be on hand. On Wednesday, the Rev. Tejado Hanchell and congregation of the Mt. Calvary Holy Church will be the guests on honor. Revival services will begin each night at 7:30 p.m.

The public is cordially invited to come and share in these services. The Rev. Dwight Hash is pastor Bethlehem Baptist.

For more information, call 336-723-1297.

Henderson latest addition to WSSU board

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

The Board of Governors of the University of North Carolina recently elected Sue Henderson to serve on the Board of Trustees of Winston-Salem State University to complete a partial four-year term ending on June 30, 2011.

Henderson

president and regional manager for Wachovia Wealth Management, a Wells Fargo company.

She began her banking career in 1983 and joined First Union Bank in 1987. Henderson has held management positions in High Point and Winston-Salem through the merger with Wachovia and the acquisition by Wells Fargo.

University of Georgia with a degree in finance, Henderson is a certified financial planner and holds securities and insurance licenses. She has served as Chair of the YMCA Metro Board of Directors and on the Boards for Reynolda House Museum of Art, the Winston-Salem Symphony, the Winston-Salem Arts Council and the Carolina Ballet Board.

She has also served on the Advisory Board for Brenner Children's Hospital and the Board of Visitors for Salem Academy and College.

You've been warned about taking candy from strangers...

Piedmont Opera presents
Hansel and Gretel
October 2, 4 and 6 at
The Stevens Center of the UNCSA

Leave the safety of home behind and join us for this haunting, charming and just a little wicked fairy tale. With its sumptuous score and delightful scenery, this will be a treat for all ages.

336.724.3202 or piedmontopera.org

A Change Has Come...Now What?

Saturday, 6:30 PM, November 21, 2009

McNair Building Hall
Anderson Center
Winston-Salem State
University Campus

Tickets are $50 each

Start Today!!

get

$25

off

your Initial Treatment!

1-800-930-wasp (9277)

Triad Pest Control, Inc.

"We're Going Green,
Come With Us!"