HAPPY BIRTHDAY!

IFB turns 75

BY TODD LUCK
THE CHRONICLE

Winston-Salem Industries for the Blind (IFB) celebrated its 75th anniversary last week.

Started by the local Lions Club in 1936, IFB began in a two room workshop on Trade Street. It's grown to become the nation's largest employer of the blind.

IFB has 400 blind or visually-impaired employees working in its facilities in Winston-Salem, Asheville and Mayaguez, Puerto Rico. The workers produce a wide range of products, including mattresses, eyeglasses, parachutes and military clothing.

Employees at IFB's North Point Boulevard facility took time to celebrate the anniversary last Friday morning. IFB Executive Director David Horton credited employees for the organization's longevity and success.

"You all are what makes IFB so special," Horton told employees gathered in the building's break room. "The hard work, the quality, the dedication, it's just amazing."

Mayor Allen Joines stopped by to read and presented a proclamation honoring the anniversary and a video was shown that featured a congratulatory message from Governor Beverly Perdue.

The employees also heard from Mike Buddie, a former Wake Forest University and Major League pitcher, who said he was impressed by the people and the work at IFB.

"I was fortunate enough to be surrounded by multimillionaires who came to work everyday and were miserable," Buddie said of the Major Leagues. "...Then I walk through the plant today and I see a bunch of smiling faces, every person that I met had a huge smile on their face."

That night, the baseball theme continued at BB&T Ballpark. Before The Dash game, the crowd witnessed a
