Galilee Missionary Baptist Church Pastor Dr. Nathan E. Scovens will be apart of the Dec. 1 panel.

Esteemed panel to take part in World AIDS Day talk

CHRONICLE STAFF REPORT

In recognition of World AIDS Day (Dec. 1), the HIV-Hope Project will hold a panel discussion on Saturday, Dec. 1 at 1 p.m. in the Central Library Auditorium, 660 West 5th St. It is free and open to the public.

The discussion will focus on topics related to HIV/AIDS and the stigma associated with the disease. The role of the church in HIV education, prevention, treatment and advocacy will be addressed. Rev.

Savalas R. Squire Sr., author of the upcoming e-book "My Hope is Built," will serve as moderator.

Panelists will include Kareem Greene, executive director of public relations for Bold Right Life of North Carolina; Wanda B. Moss, co-chairperson of C.H.A.N.G.E.'s Homeless Caucus; Dr. Nathan E. Scovens, senior pastor of Galilee Missionary Baptist Church; Shalonda Ingram, a research scientist at NCCU and president of Bold Right Life of North Carolina; and Rev.

Jeremiah E. Shipp, a teen leader mentor at Love and Faith Christian Fellowship Church. Love' Skylar Lemon, a graduate student at Wake Forest University School of Divinity, will make a special presentation.

Organizers promise that the discussion will be "informative, uplifting and empowering" and will help develop strategies designed to bring love, acceptance and healing to those in the local community living with HIV/AIDS.

This event will also launch the HIV Ambassador initiative in conjunction with AIDS Care Services of Winston-Salem.

ducted by the budget association and the UNC School of Government, to collect reliable performance and cost data to help North Carolina local governments better gauge the cost and quality of their city services. The benchmarking project became a model for regional benchmarking initiatives. In 2007, the North Carolina Local Government Budget Association awarded Jones the A. John Vogt Award for Outstanding Commitment to the Advancement of Local Government Budgeting and Evaluation.

Garrity said the city budget remains in good hands under Rowe.

"Ben's breadth of knowledge, years of experience, and passion for the details made him the logical choice for our next director," he said. As part of a cost-cutting reorganization, Rowe's current position of deputy budget and evaluation director will be eliminated.

Rowe joined the city in 1996 as a budget and evaluation analyst and has served as the deputy director since 2001. Rowe and his wife, Ann, have three children.
