

Group to perform at gallery

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

The Mami Wata Cultural Arts Collective will perform at Delta Arts Center, 2611 New Walkertown Road, on Saturday, March 2 at 11 a.m. as part of a series of events designed to spotlight the gallery's current exhibit, "Samplers & Symmetry IV: Pieces by area African-American Quilters."

The all-female interactive cultural arts and performing group will present two family-oriented events centered around the themes of traditional African-American quilts, freedom and justice, the power of women and family and cultural connections.

"Samplers & Symmetry IV" features African-American quilting, which is as old as the history of America. Deeply rooted in tradition and heritage, this age-old craft still flourishes among African-American women of all ages. The exhibit is on display through March 16.

Local man wins $4 million

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

Pfafftown resident Rusty Hunter has lived in North Carolina all his life. These days, he's semi-retired, keeping busy as a self-employed handyman.

Last week, he became the first winner of $4 million in the lottery's new $4,000,000 Gold Bullion scratch-off game. No one in state history has won a larger guaranteed instant prize.

"I'm a little more retired now," Hunter said as he claimed his prize. "To win it - what I won - is like 'Whoa.'"

Hunter, 60, will receive his $4 million prize in annuity payments of $200,000 for the next 20 years. After depositing his first after-tax check for $136,006, Hunter has already purchased a new Chevy Silverado pick-up truck and shared plans to buy an Airstream trailer. Hunter added that he would like to buy a vacation home in the mountains where he can go hunting and fishing and spend time with his dad.

Forsyth County resident Rusty Hunter accepts his check.

Alice Garland, executive director of the N.C. Education Lottery, presented Hunter with a "big check" on Friday at a celebration held at Three Brothers By-Lo on Reynolda Road in Winston-Salem, where he purchased his ticket.

"We are so happy that such amazing luck happened here," Garland said. "Players like Rusty and local businesses like this one are the reason the lottery has been able to raise more than $2.6 billion for education."

Hunter said he decided to give the $4,000,000 Gold Bullion game a try because he likes to play new games and his intuition told him a big win was coming.

"You just get a feeling," he said. "And I knew I was going to win."

The $4,000,000 Gold Bullion game started Feb. 12 with three top prizes of $4 million and seven prizes of $1 million. Players who win the game's top prize have the option of claiming it as a 20-year annuity or a lump sum option that can be claimed in either cash or gold bullion.
