Broader focus for Project We Care

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

Project We Care, a program initiated by City Council Member and Mayor Pro Tempore Vivian H. Burke to recognize individuals and agencies that volunteer to serve others in need, is expanding its scope this year to honor up to seven outstanding community volunteers and their organizations.

In addition to submitting their total volunteer hours, program participants are being asked to submit a description of one project for which they are volunteering, to be submitted to a citizen committee for review. The committee will select the top seven initiatives and hold a special recognition and reception at City Hall honoring the winners and their projects.

Participants are asked to provide film/disk/video/photos of their event suitable for being shown at the reception. Help in recording events is available by con-

An Imitation of Congress

Bennett Photo

U.S. Mel Watt (D-12th) recently hosted "Principles and Priorities" in the Global Learning Center at Bennett College. In a workshop led by the Concord Coalition, politicians, 12th District college students and faculty members were invited to participate in an interactive exercise that was designed to help them experience the real challenges faced by Congress in negotiating federal issues. Pictured (from left) are Senior Associate Provost Joyce Blackwell, Trustee Andrea Harris, N.C. Senator Earline Parmon, Watt, President Esther Terry and Senator Gladys Robinson.
