find out that the returnees become preoccupied with rebuilding their own homes.

Haggai and Zechariah, the prophets, will address this issue. Tattenai (TAT uh nigh), the Persian governor of the region, writes to King Darius questioning the Jews' authority to rebuild the Temple. Darius has the archives searched; finds Cyrus' decree; and responds. Not only are they to leave the Jews alone, but they must cover all costs associated with the project. The king warns the people not to obstruct the Jews in any way. If they do, death is imminent! That traditional closing was followed by all kings at that time.

The Persian officials quickly comply with the king's decree. The builders go to work and in three and a half years the Temple is completed. The dedication is next. According to the book of Moses (Numbers 3; 8:5-26:18), the priests and the Levites are in their proper places as sacrifices are made. Though smaller than the sacrifices of Solomon, Hezekiah and Josiah, their offerings are just as significant. God wants our best; He doesn't compare! The sin offering is the most holy, for it is given by the priest as an atoning sacrifice for all of the people. It represents repentance and seeks forgiveness. On the fourteenth day of the first month, they celebrate Passover and the Feast of Unleavened Bread for seven days. Once again, God has delivered them, touched the hearts of unbelievers and enabled them to do a great work!

Application: Isn't it amazing how God uses people? For the returnees, God moves the returnees, God moves the people to return home and rebuild the Temple. When He cleared the way, they gave Him their very best! Do we? We serve a faithful God who is loving and forgiving. Do we appreciate that? Each time He blesses us, our praise should go up to Him and Him alone. For you see, it isn't about us; it is about God and His mighty acts! Our devotion to Him should motivate us to give our best not just a "dab." He is worthy to be praised whether it is done by one or a group. We face opposition. Look all around but don't lose sight of the goal. God can and will step in. Worship is fully reinstated in Jerusalem with the completion of the Temple. How about your worship; is it what God wants and deserves?
