Convention

Year Award at the Freedom Fund Banquet for his outstanding service.

Major Allen Joines reminded NAACP members of the Ethiopian proverb, "When spider webs unite, they can tie up a lion." He thanked the organization for helping to get rid of some of the negative politics in Raleigh.

Other greeters included Rena McNeil, state advisor of the Youth/College Division, N.C. NAACP; and Carolyn Q. Coleman, first vice president of the N.C. NAACP and a member of the national Board of Directors. Daphne Holmes-Johnson, Chair of the State Convention Planning Committee, N.C. NAACP, offered the convention highlights. Musical selections set the stage to welcome all of the guests. The Emmanuel Baptist Church Mass Choir opened the service with praise and worship, and the congregational hymn was "Lift Every Voice and Sing," the Negro National Anthem.

The Liturgical Dancers of Emmanuel rocked the house with "Jesus Will Work it Out." They jumped up from their seats in the sanctuary and surprised many in the congregation as they shouted down the aisles. The Emmanuel Mime Ministry performed to "Stand," reminding NAACP members that after they have done all they can do, just stand.

Rev. Kojo Nantambu, REAP Chair, N.C. NAACP, offered the invocation, thanking God "for teaching us how to live according to his way. For showing us how to accommodate the needs of the poor and needy, the widows and the oppressed; for helping us to fight for the rights of everybody; for helping us to sustain the battle until we win. ... For we are more than conquerors. We are the children of God."

The Scripture came from Isaiah 10:1-4, a passage which offers a warning to leaders who "decree unrighteous decrees" or turn away from the needy, the poor and prey upon the widows. The prophet Isaiah admonishes the leaders who rob the fatherless children. He asks these leaders where will they run in the time of trouble? What will they do when the hand of the Almighty reaches for them?
