WSSU Trustee donates $25,000 for scholarships

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

A $25,000 donation from a member of the Winston-Salem State University Board of Trustees will create scholarships for financially challenged students while supporting academic excellence at the university.

WSSU Trustee Sue Henderson and her husband, Doug, created the Sue and Doug Henderson Endowed Scholarship, in honor of WSSU Provost Dr. Brenda A. Allen's transformative leadership for excellence in education.

"Sue has served on the academic affairs committee and during that time she has come to understand, support and be an advocate for the academic curriculum enhancements made at the university over recent years," said Michelle Cook, WSSU Vice Chancellor for Advancement.

Henderson has been a member for the WSSU board of trustees since being elected by the UNC Board of Governors in 2009. During that time she has chaired the Advancement Committee and served as a member of the Academic Affairs and Advancement committees.

"During my board tenure, I have been able to witness a total transformation under Provost Brenda Allen's leadership from conception to execution, and it has resulted in a dramatic evolution and upgrade in quality and standards," said Henderson, who is senior vice president and regional director at Wells Fargo Wealth Management in Winston-Salem. "It is our pleasure to contribute to the elevation of the quality of education at Winston-Salem State University."

Salvation Army kicked off annual distribution

SPECIAL TO THE CHRONICLE

The Salvation Army of Greater Winston-Salem unwrapped a world of hope for more than 3,000 families, and more than 7,000 children.

Distribution of Christmas assistance took place Dec. 17 through Dec. 19 from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. at The Salvation Army Christmas Center, located at 680 Peters Creek Parkway.

Once the festivities began, 100 families an hour came through the Christmas Center, greeted by the sound of Christmas carols and the warm welcomes of Salvation Army employees and volunteers. More than two-dozen volunteers were on hand each day to help make the Christmas magic happen.

"This is so much greater than the Salvation Army; Christmas brings our entire community together," said Major James Allison, Area Commander of The Salvation Army of Greater Winston-Salem. "Every donated toy brings unimaginable joy to children and their families across the area. We are blessed to be part of a community that is willing to share that kind of joy with others."

The Salvation Army is a participating United Way agency. For more information about programs or to make a donation, visit www.SalvationArmyWS.org.
