

"This Could Be The Night" Is 9 Movie

Jean Simmons and Anthony Franciosa star in "This Could Be The Night," the story of a schoolteacher who takes a parttime job in a bar to supplement her income, on Channel Nine's "Award Theatre" October 15 at 4 p.m.

Naive to night-life mode living, Anne Leads (Simmons) comes under the protective hand of several people connected with the club. Ex-boot-legger Rocco, has suave partner Tony (Anthony Franciosa), club singer Ivy, stripper Patsy and her mother, Crystal, all keep tabs on Anne. However, Anne soon proves that she can take care of herself and teaches the club some manners.

Griffin Is NCCU "Miss Homecoming"

DURHAM - Paris Griffin of Greensboro was crowned Miss Homecoming as North Carolina Central University began a week of homecoming activities.

Miss Griffin is a senior drama major, a member of Swing Phi Swing Social Fellowship, the Alfonso Elder Student Union Program Board, and the Ivan Dixon Players, and was Miss Kappa Alpha Phi in 1976-77.

The coronation is scheduled at 8:15 p.m. in B.N. Duke Auditorium.

BURNING—This new trip hope that their first record, "Angel In Your Arms," is the one that will bring them the success they've dreamed of. Known as HOT, they are, left to right, Juanita Curiel, Gwen Owens and Cathy Carson. Big Tree record officials predict that their voices will be the big sound of '77.
