Dental Emergency

Have you wondered what you could do if on a trip and some member of the family suddenly developed an agonizing toothache? It happens, and it's a good idea to have your options firmly in mind as creative thinking doesn't come easy in time of emergency.

The first and best approach to solving a dental emergency is to exhaust all avenues of finding professional help; check the local yellow pages and usually you will find a number to call - day or night - for dental referral services. If nothing like this is shown, go to the nearest general hospital emergency room. If they cannot help you they'll know where you can seek and find help. You might also look under SCHOOLS - DENTAL in the yellow pages, as most of them have emergency treatment facilities.

Then, if there are none of the above in the area you are visiting, here are some temporary relief measures you could try on your own:

+ If there are indications the toothache's cause is not in the tooth itself, but perhaps coming from a "sinus condition," you may want to try taking some kind of decongestant tablet or liquid, purchasable without prescription at any pharmacy.

+ Taking two aspirin with water could provide almost immediate relief, but don't exceed limitations stated on the label. And, make certain that the person taking them has a medical history that allows for such medication; if in doubt, don't use aspirin, and definitely don't use it if the patient is on any other medication and/or under the influence of alcoholic beverages. DO NOT lay aspirin directly on the adjoining gum or suspect tooth.

+ If the tooth has lost a filling, or has an obvious cavity, you could try soaking a small cotton ball in oil of cloves, (see nearby drug-store), and carefully press it into the cavity.

+ Applying heat or cold to the area around the aching tooth may intensify the pain. Such applications are best avoided unless recommended by your dentist, when under his direct care.

Wise preparation for a trip will include having all needed dental work taken care of by your dentist before you depart, just like the astronauts did before leaving for the moon. Even then, it may prove helpful to carry a dental emergency relief kit containing the items mentioned here and any others your personal dentist recommends.

Lauch Henry helped find the missing ingredient to educate minority engineers. Money.

Lauchland Henry is a teacher. And a scientist. And an engineer. He's genuinely concerned about other people. And he has expressed some of that concern in his participation with the National Fund for Minority Engineering Students.

The fund is a non-profit organization attempting to increase the number of Blacks, Puerto Ricans, Chicanos, Mexican-Americans and American Indians enrolled in engineering schools.

These under-represented minorities constitute a rich untapped resource to help fill the growing need for engineers, a need that is expected to continue through the mid-1980's.

IBM's social leave program enabled Dr. Henry to take a year's leave to assist the fund. And IBM continued to pay him his full salary.

The National Fund for Minority Engineering Students is a very worthwhile program. We think so. Lauchland Henry thinks so. But most important of all, lots of minority engineering students enrolled at colleges and universities all over the country think so.
