

Natural Talent For Coordinating Fabulous Wardrobe

There are some people who have a natural talent for coordinating a fabulous wardrobe. For others the task isn't quite so simple. One solution, fortunately is to read what the experts in fashion have to say about today's styles.

Grayden Taylor Jr., president and owner of Taylor School of Modeling in Baytown, Texas, is interested in aiding women. His school, which has been in operation for only two years, has produced "Teen," and "Glamour" magazines' cover models. He also authored "How to Become a Model, Or Just Look Like One." Here are a few of his suggestions.

Color this year is on the rampage, according to Taylor. Instead of blacks and greys, yellows, even turquoise can put color into those summer wardrobes. The style for this year however, is simple and basic.

Wrap dresses are very much in style, but the most interesting thing to remember is what looks good on you. "If it looks good, feels good on you," Taylor explains, "and you like it, its fashionable."

Planning a weekend trip? Taylor suggests two pairs of pants (dressy and jean style) a blouse, shirt, skirt, kit or T-shirt, knit suit, jacket and camisole. The key, it seems, is to be prepared for any occasion.

And finally an essential part of your style is your hair appearance. According to Taylor the newest hair styles for males and females is the short look. He added, "Sorry, but the day of the Afro has passed."

Just a few tips and one of the most important points to remember is that our bodies (made up of 600 muscles) aren't made to fit into everything. If you really want to look good, first you have to believe it yourself.

North Carolina Central University has made a change in a faculty position. Dr. Mary Townes has been appointed Dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences at the University, located in Durham, N.C. Her appointment was confirmed by the Board of Governors of the University of North Carolina system. Dr. Townes has been a member of the NCCU faculty since 1950.

Dr. Sterling Whitener, Chairman of the Livingstone College Department of Social Welfare, announced recently that Livingstone received two grants for two new programs. The grants, totaling $63,296, came from the Department of Health and Human Services in Washington, D.C.

The first grant, Dr. Whitener explained, "is for a program in Child Welfare Curriculum Development." The second grant is for the establishment of a Social Welfare Field Unit Traineeship in conjunction with the Gaston County Social Services Department. Livingstone is located in Salisbury, N.C.

"Always you have been told that work is a curse and labour a misfortune.

But I say to you that when you work you fulfill a part of earth's furthest dream, assigned to you when that dream was born,

And in keeping yourself with labour you are in truth loving life,

And to love life through labour is to be intimate with life's inmost secret."

"Tony Brown's Journal," July 20, will focus on black professional model Joyce Walker. Entitled "Modeling: A Six-Year Lifetime," the program will feature Ms. Walker's viewpoints about being Black in the beauty business. Also Ophelia DeVore, owner of The Ophelia DeVore School of Charm, will be on the program discussing the difficulties of Blacks getting in, the personal relationships with celebrities, and views on how it is today for Black models.

"Tony Brown's Journal" returns to commercial television for a third exciting year. It is the first public television series to move to commercial television. The program airs at 11:30 p.m. on Channel 3.

Recruiting Squadron Sets New Record

By Susan Ellsworth Post Staff Writer

The 37th Recruiting Squadron, located at the Shaw Air Force Base in South Carolina recently set a record. For 37 consecutive months the squadron has met or exceeded its non-prior service goal.

North and South Carolina and 14 counties in Georgia are within the 37th jurisdiction. Over 8,900 men and women have enlisted in the Air Force during those 37 months.

Squadron commander Major John W. Jahn II credited their success to positive thinking.

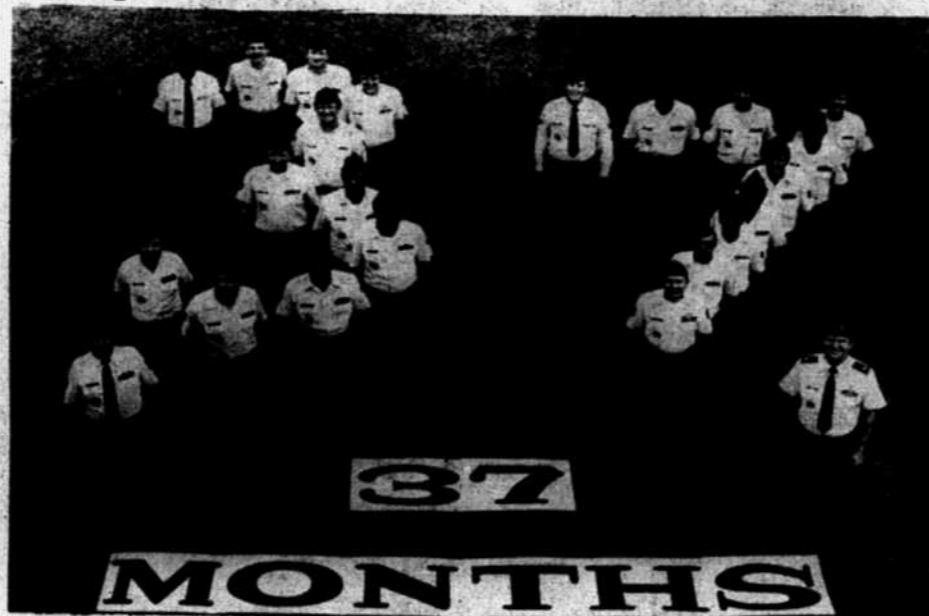

"One of the reasons is the winning attitude of all our recruiters, regardless of their specialty," he said.

Another reason is "The people are historically patriotic in our area, especially the young people," Jahn continued.

Captain Steve Arrington, an Advertising and Publicity officer at the Air Training Command said that since the Air Force has a smaller recruitment budget than other military branches, it relies more heavily on personal contact with the community.

Although the broadcast media donates time for public service spots, the Air Force depends on person-to-person contact in the community to secure needed enlistees.

Seven recruiting units are in the 37th squadron, and there are 23 squadrons
