

Barber-Scotia Producing "Prime National Resources"

Our Strength Through Investment In Our Future

Barber-Scotia College is producing a "prime national resource" ... well-educated, qualified, problem-solving students - students whose training and ambition can lead them to greatness.

This is the Barber-Scotia College investment in the future. Barber-Scotia College is helping to ensure that there is an adequate supply of competent and contributing young men and women in our society for years to come. The future of society, in general, depends on it. This is the basis upon which Barber-Scotia has created generations of thinkers, including its most illustrious alumna, Mary McLeod Bethune, advisor to President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Barber-Scotia College still justifies its existence through the worth and resourcefulness of its graduates as sound citizens, as intellectuals, professionals, and leaders of tomorrow.

Over three thousand highly qualified and successful members of the business, political, scientific, and educational communities are testimony to the effectiveness of the Barber-Scotia College education.

Barber-Scotia College believes and demonstrates that an investment in the minds of youth today will yield high dividends and returns for the total society.

They are Barber-Scotia students of today, and the professionals of tomorrow.

OUR STRENGTH THROUGH ACADEMIC PROGRAMS

The academic program of Barber-Scotia College adheres to the liberal arts tradition. It is the Barber-Scotia philosophy that a core program of liberal arts courses is the best preparation for understanding the real world. The arts, the humanities, the natural sciences, and mathematics are the primary areas of study so important to this understanding.

Within the liberal arts curriculum, Barber-Scotia College offers bachelor degrees in arts and sciences, and limits its majors to these fields of study: Biology, Medical Technology, Sociology, Mathematics, Mathematics (Computer Science), Business Administration (Accounting), Business Administration (Marketing), Business Administration (Hotel/Restaurant Management), Education (Early Childhood), Education (Intermediate Grades), Education (Secondary), and Physical Education (Recreation).

While studying in a low student-teacher ratio of 12:1, students receive the personal touch at Barber-Scotia College and they are placed at center. Barber-Scotia recognizes the individuality of each student and seeks to design an academic program to challenge each student's potential.

The academic strength of Barber-Scotia College is also based upon the quality of its library.

Academic advising, career planning, and a placement service center are also important to the overall success of the academic program of Barber-Scotia College.

OUR STRENGTH

THROUGH STUDENTS
The uniqueness of Barber-Scotia College is nowhere more evident than in the students themselves. There is no doubt that when a college attracts eager students from different parts of the world students with different backgrounds, and different values, excitement is generated in their coming together.

The students at Barber-Scotia College come from fifteen or more states, the District of Columbia, the U. S. Virgin Islands, Africa, and other countries. Although a large number of students come from the Carolinas, the broad-based geographical distribution allows for cultural and regional variety.

The student body is small and the atmosphere is friendly. Approximately 85% of the students live on campus. Barber-Scotia provides comfortable and modern living quarters. There are two residence halls for women and one for men. All have residence supervisors and a staff of resident assistants. Resident students are actively involved in the living and learning atmosphere that exists in the residence halls.

The central organization to which all students belong is the BSC Student Government Association. There are fraternities and sororities, a monthly newspaper, The Scotia Express, the drama club, the college choir, as well as other campus organizations which complement the challenging academic atmosphere.

Because one of the goals of BSC is Total Student Development, students are offered educational support services in personal counseling, educational testing, student affairs, religious life programs, career planning and placement.

OUR STRENGTH THROUGH FACULTY

Barber-Scotia realizes that the responsibility of a student's full and well rounded education rests, in part, with its faculty. And Barber-Scotia College is proud to have a faculty that is dedicated to the acquisition and dissemination of knowledge.
