

One Man's Trash Is Another Man's Treasure?

Special To The Post
 "One man's trash is another man's treasure."
 A group of local Boy Scouts, Marines and Dilworth neighborhood residents will put this adage into action in a community recycling project set for Saturday, April 13.
 Recyclable items, including newspapers, jars, bottles and aluminum cans, will be picked up at curbside throughout the Dilworth Elementary School zone beginning at 9 a.m., April 13.
 Newspapers collected will be donated to the Dilworth School PTA paper drive, to be held the same day.

Dr. Mary Berry Is UNC-G Black History Month Speaker

GREENSBORO—Dr. Mary F. Berry, who was an assistant secretary for education with the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare from 1977-80, will speak at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro on Sunday, February 24.
 Dr. Berry's address is expected to focus on the Free South Africa Movement, of which she is a founder, and the racial policies of that nation's government. She will speak from 2:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the Arts and Sciences Building on campus. A reception will follow in the UNC-G Alumni House. There is no admission charge to either event.
 A black scholar, historian, author and educator, Dr. Berry was recently arrested during a sit-in protest at the South African Embassy in Washington, D.C.
 Currently, she is a professor of history and law at Howard University in Washington, D.C., where she is a senior fellow in the school's Institute for the Study of Educational Policy. She holds the bachelor's and master's degrees from Howard University, and received her doctorate and law degrees from the University of Michigan.
 In February 1979, during the heat of the UNC system's desegregation dispute with HEW, Dr. Berry was one of two key HEW officials to tour six institutions—including UNC-G and N.C. A&T State University—in the state's university system. She was accompanied by David Tatel, who was then director of HEW's Office of Civil Rights.
 Among several academic appointments in her career, Dr. Berry was professor of history and law at the University of Colorado at Boulder from 1976-80. She was chancellor of the institution from 1976-77 before leaving to assume HEW duties during the Carter administration. She also is a member of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, serving as its vice chairperson from 1980-82. She is the author of four books.

The project is sponsored by the Mecklenburg County Board of County Commissioners to raise awareness of the importance of recycling trash. It has been endorsed by the Dilworth Community Development Association.

"This is an excellent example of what can be done to encourage recycling," County Commission Chairman Carla E. DuPuy said. "Perhaps this will stimulate similar efforts throughout the County. I hope this one-day demonstration will make people think about the need for long-term commitment to recycling."

Experts estimate that in the County between $10 and $16 million in materials could be recycled instead of buried in landfills. At the same time it is being buried, the County is running out of space in landfills to bury trash. The Commissioners have warned that existing landfill space will be filled by the end of June 1987. In an effort to reduce the amount of trash we produce, the Commissioners are urging residents to get into the habit of recycling aluminum cans, glass bottles and newspapers.

Volunteers in the Dilworth demonstration project are getting excited about the prospect of promoting recycling.

"Boy Scouts like to do anything to improve conservation and environmental resources," said Chuck Towery, District Executive, Mecklenburg County Council, Boy Scouts of America.

"Boy Scout Troop 120 of Avondale Presbyterian Church, Troop 1 of Holy Comforter Episcopal Church and Troop 9 of St. Patrick's Cathedral will collect the recyclables from the curb."

Marines, who will drive eight trucks through the neighborhood collecting the goods, are looking forward to the project, too. "We're interested because we're serving the community in a way we think is beneficial," said Captain Douglas Keene of the Fourth Maintenance Battalion of the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve in Charlotte.

The Scouts and Marines will be collecting recyclables between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. April 13. The Mecklenburg County Recycling Program's recycling truck will be parked at the Dilworth School, along with the trailer for the PTA paper drive.

All families living in the Dilworth School zone are asked to participate. Recyclable items should be sorted and clean. Glass bottles and jars should be rinsed and separated by colors — clear, brown and green. Their lids should be removed. They should be placed in double grocery bags — one color to each bag. Aluminum cans should be flattened for easier storage. Newspapers should be stacked and placed in boxes or shopping bags.

Recyclables should be placed at curbside by 9 a.m. Saturday, April 13.

Chef Of The Year

Alice Wysor has been named Chef of the Year by the Epicurean Club of Greater Charlotte, an organization of chefs and food service professionals.

Ms. Wysor is a baking and table cookery instructor for the Food Service Occupations program at Central Piedmont Community College. A 1961 graduate of the CPCC program, she also operates Alice's Catering and is co-owner of Cafe Caroline.

Past recipients of the award include Walter O'Neil, head of CPCC's Food Services program, and Virginia Meyerly, also a program graduate. The Epicurean Club has been awarding the honor since 1973.

The Mt. Carmel Male Chorus will be in concert Sunday February 24 at the church, 3201 Tuckaseegee Rd. The program begins at 8 p.m. This concert features Great Gospel and spiritual music from old classics such as "Steal Away To Jesus" and contemporary gospel such as "He's My Rooftop." The concert is free to the public.

Orthopaedic Hospital To Sponsor Footraces

Special To The Post
 The Orthopaedic Hospital of Charlotte has announced plans to sponsor the First Annual Orthopaedic Hospital Sprint Thaw Footraces on March 30 in Charlotte.

The event features three races: a one-mile fun run, a five-kilometer (3.1 miles) fun and a 10-kilometer (6.2 miles) run. All will begin and end at the Orthopaedic Hospital of Charlotte on 1901 Randolph Road.

With all proceeds going to the March of Dimes, race director Linda Howard has adopted a theme of "run for those who can't." And while experienced runners naturally are encouraged to enter, Howard is hoping for a large group of novices.

"We are extending a special invitation to those entering their first race," she says. "We're expecting a rather large turnout, and we've got events for everyone from the first-time, casual runner to the experienced, competitive runners."

Numerous awards will be offered in a variety of age categories. Pre-registration ends March 25, but entrants may register the day of the race. Only those who pre-register will be guaranteed a T-shirt.

Entry forms are available at the Orthopaedic Hospital of Charlotte American Athletics and other area sporting goods stores and fitness centers. Or interested runners may call the hospital, (704) 375-6792 ext. 153, for entry forms. The pre-registration fee is $6 for the 5k and 10, events and $5 for the fun run. Those fees will increase one dollar on race day.

CPCC Spring Courses

Courses Focus

On Women

Courses designed for and about women will be offered during the spring quarter at Central Piedmont Community College.

"Women in the criminal Justice System" and "Self-Power for Women" will be available. For the first time, CPCC's "Math Anxiety Reduction" will be taught at WomanReach. "Career Development for Women" will be offered by CPCC's Women's Career Center in Pineville, Matthews, and at the N.C. Council on the Status of Women office uptown.

And for the convenience of North Mecklenburg residents, a Women Business Owner's Group will be organized by CPCC's Small Business Center in connection with the North Area Learning Center in Cornelius.

Tuition is $4.25 per quarter hour for most courses, or $51 for a full load of courses. Classes begin April 1 and end June 18.

Registration for spring quarter begins March 4-7 for current students and continues March 11-14 for all others. Registration centers are located on the main campus at Kings Drive and Elizabeth Avenue, and at learning centers in Freedom Mall, Matthews, Pineville, and Cornelius. Hours are 9 a.m. - 2 p.m. and 5-8 p.m.

The complete schedule of courses will appear in the Sunday February 24 edition of The Charlotte Observer or will be available on campus after that date.

For more information about registration, call 373-6940.
