County Commission Chairman Carla E. DuPuy and Commissioner Fountain Odum put up one of the large decals that are part of Operation Visibility, the graphic campaign to promote awareness of the need for recycling. The campaign includes bumper stickers, lapel pins and posters in addition to the decals.

Need For Recycling

Carla DuPuy Urges Use Of Bumper Stickers To Increase Awareness

"Maybe when folks are stuck in traffic behind a car with one of these Recycle NOW bumper stickers, they'll begin thinking about the need for recycling."

County Commission Chairman Carla E. DuPuy made that comment during the official ceremony to launch Operation Visibility. The operation will use bumper stickers, two sizes of poster decals, posters and lapel pins to help increase awareness of the need for recycling.

The official kickoff was held last week at the York Road Landfill where one of the recycling centers is located. When the York Road Landfill is closed, the land it occupies is scheduled to be recycled into a recreational area with ballfields and other sports facilities. Other participants in the kickoff were Charlotte Mayor Harvey Gantt, Dave Marcus of Container Corporation of Carolina, and Elizabeth Riggs of the Girl Scouts, along with Scouts and their adult leaders.

Chairman DuPuy made her comment about the bumper stickers when she was contrasting traffic problems with the garbage disposal problem. She said everyone is aware of the traffic problems because they are out in them every day. "They don't realize we have a problem with our waste because there is still a place to put it, but we are running out of landfill space," she said.

County officials have warned that at current rates, all of the existing landfills will be closed by the end of June, 1987 and there is no new landfill yet approved for use. The first county incinerator will not begin operation until 1987 or later. Until then recycling is the only way to divert significant amounts of solid waste from the landfills and prolong their life.

Mayor Gantt participated in the ceremony by putting a bumper sticker on a city garbage truck. He expressed the desire to see the city become more involved in efforts to promote recycling.

Marcus, general manager for Container Corporation of Carolina, said his company has agreed to put decals and bumper stickers on its trucks and equipment. Container Corporation, a private hauler of waste, has agreed to put decals on its dumpsters where its customers do not object. As a part of the ceremony Marcus placed a bumper sticker on one of the company's dumpster-handling trucks.

Ms. Riggs, communications director for the Hornets Nest Girl Scout Council, said the Girl Scouts want to participate in Operation Visibility because they have a long-standing commitment to protection of the environment and conservation of natural resources. The Girl Scouts staffed five recycling centers Saturday, June 22, to place bumper stickers on all vehicles for which the drivers will give permission. Girl Scouts placed bumper stickers on the county's recycling truck as their part in the launch of Operation Visibility.

County Recycling Coordinator Anne Mackenzie said anyone wishing to obtain posters, pins, decals or bumper stickers or more information on recycling, should call 537-7442.

NUL Conference To Focus

Major Attention On Black Youth

Black youth will be the focus of attention on Sunday, July 21, at a special program devoted to the major issues and problems that confront them today, as part of the National Urban League's Annual Conference in Washington, D.C.

The principal speaker will be Dr. Asa Hilliard of Georgia State University who is deeply emersed in the study of the black family from its roots in Africa to its development in America, and is an articulate advocate of the use of history and culture in the preservation, survival and enhancement of the black family.

Responding to Dr. Hilliard's presentation will be a high school student, a student from a predominantly black college and another from a predominantly white college.

The 1985 Annual Conference of the National Urban League (NUL) comes as it is celebrating its 75th year. The NUL was founded in New York City in 1910 to help the growing tide of black migrants from the rural South adjust to the different circumstances of urban living. It has grown into one of the largest and most effective community service agencies in the country with 113 affiliates across the country.

The theme of the 1985 Conference, which opens on Sunday, July 21, and closes Wednesday, July 24, is "Honoring Yesterday - Challenging Tomorrow." It reflects the overall content of the Conference which while paying tribute to the past, will also direct attention to the major issues of today and tomorrow. The Conference site is the Sheraton Washington Hotel.

The formal opening of the Conference will come on Sunday night with the keynote address by John E. Jacob, President of the NUL. The first of a number of major plenary sessions will take place on Monday morning, July 22, when a prominent Republican will address the Conference on the topic, "Minorities and the Republican Party."

Two plenary sessions, in the morning and in the afternoon, will be held on Monday and Tuesday, with a single morning plenary session on Wednesday. In addition, over 20 forums will be held during the four-day Conference on such vital subjects as: "The Role of the Black Church in the Community," "Community Mobilization to Enhance Black Families," "The Challenge to Affirmative Action," "Coping with Teenage Pregnancy," "The Resurgence of Racism in America," and

"Reflections on Black Leadership."

A number of special programs have also been arranged including an International Night Session on Tuesday, July 23, that will provide a forum for the Rev. Dr. Allan Boesak, President of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches, Cape Town, South Africa, and Randall Robinson, Executive Director of TransAfrica, the group which has been at the forefront of the demonstrations in this country against apartheid in South Africa.

Among the other speakers who will appear at the Conference are Mary Futrell, President of the National Education Association; Congressman Mickey Leland of Texas; Congressman William H. Gray III, chairman of the House Budget Committee; Secretary of Health and Human Services Margaret M. Heckler; Lane Kirkland, President, AFL-CIO; and Secretary of Labor, William E. Brock.

Registration to the Conference is open to the public. Further information may be secured by contacting: The Conference Department, National Urban League, Inc., 500 East 62nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10021; phone 212-310-9032.
