SECRETARY OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA

The University of North Carolina invites applications and nominations for the position of Secretary of the University.

The Secretary of the University is a senior member of the UNC President's staff, serving as liaison with the UNC Board of Governors and officials of the 16 constituent institutions within UNC. The Secretary is responsible to the President for planning and coordinating meetings and other official functions of the Board of Governors, maintaining all records of and certifying the official acts of the Board, providing primary staff assistance to the Board's Committee on University Governance, facilitating communication among the boards of trustees of constituent institutions and the Office of the President and the Board of Governors, and otherwise representing and promoting the interests of the University as directed by the President. The Secretary supervises two assistants and other staff. A candidate for this position should have (1) a baccalaureate degree, and preferably advanced degrees, from an accredited institution of higher education, (2) extensive management experience, preferably in the field of higher education, (3) superior organizational and interpersonal skills and a superior ability to communicate, both orally and in writing, and (4) the ability to represent the University effectively to a wide variety of audiences. A knowledge of the structure, governance and programs of the University of North Carolina is desirable. Salary will be commensurate with ability and experience.

Candidates should write the Secretary Search Committee, UNC-General Administration, Post Office Box 2688, Chapel Hill, NC 27515-2688. Submit a letter and resume, including the names, addresses, and phone numbers of four references. Nominations should also be accompanied by the nominee's resume. The committee will begin reviewing applications on July 12, 1993. The University of North Carolina is an affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer.

How does a well educated,

drug free, middle class

woman give birth

to a two pound baby?

Sometimes it just happens. Even to women who follow all the rules and take all the precautions. Women like Candyce Krumwiede. She went into labor 13 weeks early, delivering a low birthweight baby who was barely capable of breathing.

Her daughter, Laura, spent the first 11 weeks of her life in the neonatal intensive care unit of Loyola University Medical Center. A facility created to give extremely sick and low birthweight babies the advanced treatment they need. And one that's part of a regional system of newborn intensive care units developed and funded by the March of Dimes.

Because until there's a way to prevent all low birthweight babies, we have to make sure there's a way to help them survive. And that's what we've done for Laura. She's the March of Dimes 1991 National Ambassador. But more importantly, she's a healthy, ballet-dancing, pizza-crazed, 7 year old.

Please join our campaign for healthier babies.
