

Minister turned life around in South Carolina prison

"I want everyone who reads this book to know, that no matter how dark and bleak life may seem at times, that God is able to bring you through," he said.

Woods said that he felt by writing the book, more people would receive his message. He didn't worry that he told too much of his life. "Ministers paint a perfect picture about their lives from the pulpit. We don't talk about our past," he said.

Woods wants to use his story as a warning to other people on the same path that led him to prison.

"I also want everyone to realize that no matter what sins we have committed, if we earnestly repent, God is willing to forgive us," he said.

Before he wrote the book, Woods said he prayed about it. "I was inspired by God to write this book," he said. "I don't get any glory from my past."

Woods is an ordained minister and pastor. He founded the Kingdom of God Worship Center in Columbia and started his own printing company. Woods said his book is an extension of his ministry.
