ANOTHER WAY TO HELP CHOWAN COLLEGE

To the Friends of Chowan College: Speaking in behalf of Chowan College, I realize that you have contributed freely, as individuals, and through your churches, to the upkeep of our institution and I want to thank you for your generous support. Without your support and cooperation the work we are engaged in could not go on; with your continued support the work can and will be carried on with increased vigor and effectiveness.

This is not an appeal for financial help. I have taken this means to tell you of an unusual opportunity to secure money for our college. To avail ourselves of this opportunity, however, we need your assistance.

Through the cooperation of the makers of Octagon Soap Products, Borden's Premium Brand Milks, and Kirkman Soap Products we will be able to obtain this money. The companies require only that we collect the necessary number of premium coupons and they will pay us one fifth cent each for them. The coupons required are many more than we can save at the college; therefore, we appeal to you. Many of you have coupons on hand; will you not contribute them to this worthy cause? Many others may be buying these brands of soaps and milks and not saving the coupons. On behalf of Chowan College, I ask you to cut out the coupon from every soap and milk wrapper that comes into your home. There are six Octagon Soap products, ten brands of Borden's Milks, and six Kirkman Soap products. Each product has a premium coupon. Save these coupons for Chowan College.

I know that many of you, who may have felt that you could not contribute financially to our support, will be glad to respond to this appeal for premium coupons. Send in your coupons as early as possible, in quantities large or small, to Miss Rhodes Holder, Chowan College, Murfreesboro, N. C. RHODES HOLDER, Chairman.

PERSEVERANCE AND PATIENCE REQUISITES

Ruskin says that education is a painful, continual, and difficult work. This being true, we realize that in order to secure an education a person must possess much perseverance and patience. He must be willing to work hard without seeing immediate results. And, since nothing worthwhile is accomplished without a good beginning, we should be very careful to bend all our energies in the right direction as we undertake the duties of the new scholastic year. Are we doing our best to master each day's problems and difficulties? The success or failure of all our efforts this year will be largely determined by the foundations we lay during these first days. The daily accomplishments of the assigned tasks will form sturdy, substantial foundations on which to build a well-rounded education.

SOCIETIES NOT TO BE OPEN TO MEN STUDENTS

The question "Are men students eligible for membership in the Alathenian and Lucalian Literary Societies?" has been asked frequently since the opening of the college year. Always the answer has been an emphatic "No". Men students argue that they would get more of the Chowan spirit and that they could have a better chance to develop their literary abilities if they could join these societies. They ask, too, why they should be excluded from only this phase of college life. Many women students agree with them. We contend, however, that the only logical solution is the organization of a third society for men only. If men were to become members of two existing societies, no satisfactory arrangement could be devised whereby there would be an equal division of the men members. The women's societies would not be satisfied, and the spirit between the two would be anything except friendly rivalry as is now the case. Especially would this be true on Society Day. Moreover, the admission of men into the women's societies would set aside all our precedents. In other colleges and universities the societies do not number both sexes in their membership. The men can easily organize a society of their own which will become a vital part of the college. The problem of a meeting place can be solved temporarily by the use of the small cottage formerly used for the Junior tea room.

TO DOROTHY

To me you are a sea nymph
Who comes from out the foam
Of silver colored waters
That is your pretty home.

A graceful, lovely creature
With flowing golden hair
That seems to haunt the waters
And keep my boatman there.

Often with your sea mates
You lure me on and on
With scores of dreamy melodies
From night to early dawn.

When you sink beneath the waves
Sometimes I see you wrapped in sleep
Reclining on a pearly couch
Down there within the deep.
ARRA SNIPES.

SENIOR NOTES

It's great to be back on the campus after a pleasant vacation, but what changes! The girls who left Chowan in May as Jolly Juniors have actually disappeared and in exchange there are twenty-one dignified Seniors.

The senior class president, Rhodes Holder, is predicting much good work from this year's upperclassmen, for with twenty-one members what is there that can not be accomplished?

"Would you consider accepting the sponsorship of the Senior Class?" is somewhat the nature of the question which Rhodes Holder asked Miss Clara Brown last week. Here's to our new sponsor and may she find pleasure in her undertaking.

Wanted—A girl and a boy as mascots for the class '33. Applications should be in not later than October 31.

B. S. U. NOTES

The B. S. U. gives a cordial welcome to all the new students and new faculty members on Chowan's campus. We are delighted to have you with us and hope that you will have a happy year in our big family here at Chowan. You are cordially invited to attend and join all religious organizations and to take an active part in the B. S. U. work on the campus.

White streamers with the words "Ask Me" in blue letters worn by the members of the B.S.U. Council were among the first things seen by many of the new girls upon arrival at Chowan. The council members gave valuable information and assistance. They helped girls register, find their rooms, and to meet other girls; and in general they made them feel at home.

On Friday night, September 10, the B. S. U. entertained the new students and the new faculty members at a weiner roast. The boys and girls met on the front steps at 6:45 P. M. About 7 o'clock they left for the old spring where they found a fire ready for roasting weiners. After supper they were entertained with jokes, stories, and games. New and old students became acquainted, and a feeling of general good fellowship prevailed.

Many of the Chowan girls took active part in the religious work of their home churches during the summer vacation. Velva Howard was president of the Senior B. Y. P. U., and taught a junior Sunday School class; Nellie Sample was president of Senior B. Y. P. U.,

Attendance at Morning Watch has been unusually large this year. It has been unusually large this year for the beneficial and inspiring talks which he has been giving us each Friday morning.

The B. S. U. wishes to thank Mrs. C. E. Martin for the beautiful rug which she so kindly presented to the council for use in the observatory.

Dear old Chowan, Dear old Chowan,

How dearly do we love thee!
How proud are we that we are here

Our loyalty to prove thee.
Nowhere do birds sing quite so sweet

Nowhere do schoolgirls look quite so neat.

In all the sunny South so fair,
No place is there above thee.
