

Sophs Entertain Seniors At Picnic

College seniors dignified? Well, I should say not, or you would not have thought so if you could have seen them at Hillcrest Park Thursday evening, May 2, at 8 o'clock when the sophomores entertained them.

After walking and running over the hills, the seniors were called to the best picnic supper you ever saw. There were all kinds of sandwiches, pickle, finger rolls, weiners, lemonade, marshmallows, and a big fire to toast the weiners and marshmallows over. Then when the seniors thought they could eat no more, their little sisters brought forth Dixie Cups. The seniors could not refrain from giving fifteen raahs for the sophomores.

After that, all the seniors told Ethel Jones, as president of the sophomore class, just what a good time they had.

cooperation of all the students on the campus in order to have solid foundation for the B. S. U. work. She also expressed her pleasure on having a pastor for the next year to aid and guide the council.

Rev. J. H. Bunn of Lawrenceville, Va., the speaker of the evening, who has been called as pastor of the Murfreesboro Baptist Church and professor of Bible at the college, was introduced by Dr. Edwards. Mr. Bunn, after a few preliminary remarks, talked on "Doing Our Best". At the end of the address Mr. Bunn offered a prayer to the dedication of the installation service.

The new officers are: President, Lou Wilson Evans; first vice-president, Genevieve Brown; second vice-president, Martha Yates Seymour; third vice-president, Beatrice Martin; secretary and treasurer, Edythe Pearce; reporter, Myra Sample; president of Volunteer and Life Service Band, Mary Smith; president of Y. W. A., Sarah Brickhouse; president of B. Y. P. U., Madeline Modlin; Evening Watch leader, Marion Holloman; Morning Watch leader, Garnet Grizzard; music director, Louise Lassiter; and Sunday School representative, Mattie Gray Hoggard.

The retiring officers are: President, Inez Willoughby; first vice-president, Ruth Stephenson; second vice-president, Evelyn Blanchard; secretary and treasurer, Lois Cartwright; reporter, Edythe Pearce; president of the Volunteer and Life Service Band, Mary Smith; president of Y. W. A., Mabel Carroll; president of B. Y. P. U., Lou Wilson Evans; Evening Watch leader, Genevieve Brown; Morning Watch leader, Nora Mae Ward; music director, Louise Lassiter; and Sunday School representative, Edith Smith.

Since the new council was just putting out on the sea of a new year's work, the wise elders, the old council honored them with a ship banquet. After each sailor had found her place on the deck by an anchor place card, the good ship B. S. U. set sail with the welcome given by Inez Willoughby. The first port was reached and visited to take on a toast to the passengers by Mabel Carroll and a response by Dr. Edwards. Smooth sailing was enjoyed until it was time to take on more cargo in the form of a toast to the new crew, by Ruth Stephenson, and a response by Lou Wilson Evans, the new president. "Ship Ahoy" was sounded as Nora Mae

Ward presented a toast to the voyage. The ship's enjoyable cruise was ended as it drew into port with the farewell by the toastmistress.

The crew found everything in shipshape from the anchor place-cards to the miniature ship booklets which continued the program and menu. For a realistic atmosphere, a smooth sea was furnished by blue crepe paper and white napkins were folded and placed so that they represented sailboats.

Among the distinguished passengers were Dr. W. B. Edwards, Mrs. J. L. Josey, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bunn, and Miss Ivey Gravette, the B. S. U. Sponsor.
