

New Head Of Sciences Appointed

Professor Lionel L. Bishop, Jr., has been elected chairman of the Department of Science for the 1960-61 term, succeeding Professor F. Milam Johnson, resigned.

PROFESSOR BISHOP

Professor Johnson, who also came to Chowan in 1956, has accepted an appointment with East Carolina College.

Professor Bishop, who also came to Chowan in 1956, is a native of Bethel, graduated from Swan Quarter high school in 1949, and from East Carolina College in 1955 with a math major and science minor. He received his M. A. degree from the same college in 1958.

In 1959, Professor Bishop was awarded a National Science Fellowship and studied during that summer at Florida State University. He will attend Clemson College this summer under a second Fellowship award. He is now taking week-end classes at East Carolina towards his doctorate.

Professor Bishop serves on several faculty committees at the college, and takes part in many of the student extracurricular affairs.

He was married in 1955 to the former Miss Ann Carawan of Swan Quarter. They have two children, Leannette and Garrett.

While THE CHOWANIAN welcomes Professor Bishop to his new post, it also regrets that the college will be losing the services of Professor Johnson. He has been outstanding in his work as a teacher and chairman of the Department of Science, as well as in the many other activities he participated in at Chowan College.

DEDICATION

The 1960 edition of the Chowan College yearbook, THE CHOWANOKA, just off the press, is dedicated to Professor John McSweeney, chairman of the School of Graphic Arts at Chowan.

Edited by Raymond James of Raleigh and John Griffin of Yanceyville, the attractive pictorial publication was prepared and printed at the college. The dedication page pays high tribute to Professor McSweeney, not only for his efforts in behalf of the yearbook, but for his tireless and sympathetic assistance to the Chowan students in all of their publications activities.

MEMBERS OF THE PRESS — On the steps of the Columns building are the members of the Eastern North Carolina Press Association, administration and faculty members of the college, and other guests who were in attendance at the April 30 press association meeting and luncheon at the college. A list of the press association members who visited the college and inspected the School of Graphic Arts can be found elsewhere on this page. The members have a real interest in this school.

Press Meets At Chowan

Some 60 members of the Eastern North Carolina Press Association held a luncheon meeting Saturday, April 30, at Chowan College and visited the School of Graphic Arts.

Better known as the Roy Parker School of Printing, the school was organized back in 1952 through the efforts of a few eastern North Carolina publishers. Since that time they have contributed funds for the present building which houses some $150,000 worth of printing equipment these same publishers have donated to Chowan College.

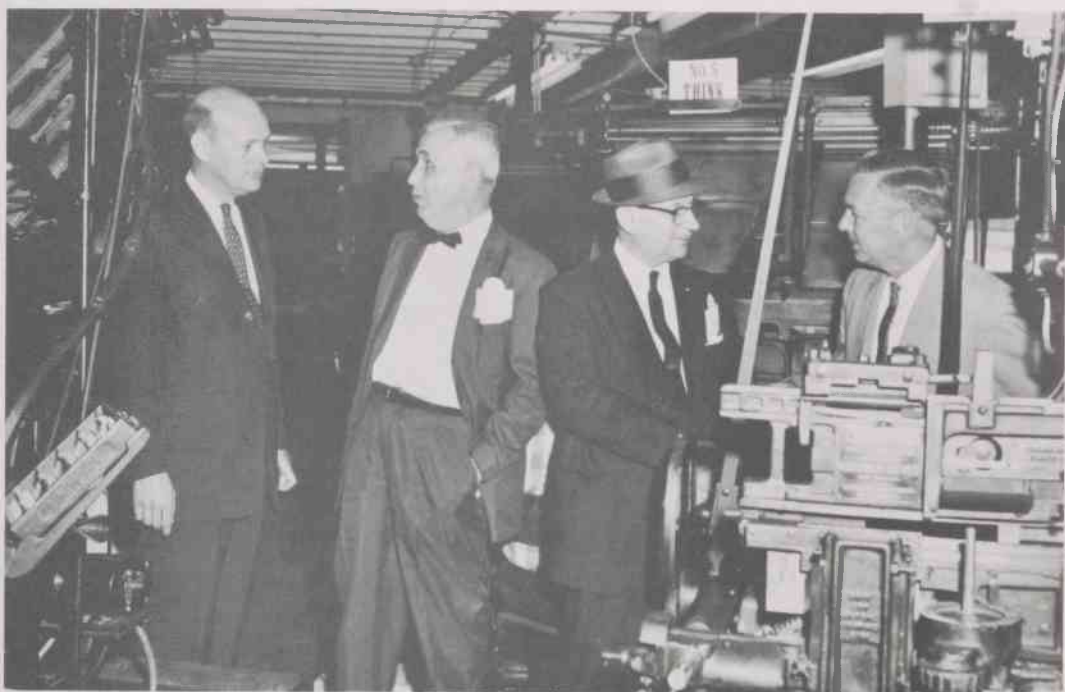

Don Hall, publisher of the Roanoke Rapids Daily Herald and president of the Association, presided at the luncheon meeting. Dr. Bruce E. Whitaker, president of Chowan College, addressed the group, as well as introduced Murfreesboro Mayor Richard Vann; Chamber of Commerce President Henry Burgwyn; and George Gibbs, chairman of the Executive Committee of Chowan College.

The visiting newspaper publishers, following a tour of Chowan's campus and a visit to inspect the school of printing, were given a fried chicken lunch in the new air-conditioned cafeteria. The school of printing students were in classes during the day in order for their benefactors to see the plant in full operation.

Some members of the press who visited the School of Graphic Arts, included publisher T. J. Lassiter of the Smithfield Herald, and five staff members; Publisher Bignall Jones of the Warren Record, Warrenton; Publisher T. W. Wilson of the Littleton Observer, and two staff members; Publisher H. L. Oswald, the Wallace Enterprise, and staff member,

AT THE HEAD TABLE — Those on the program at the Press Association luncheon in Chowan's cafeteria were Mr. George Gibbs, chairman of the executive committee of the college; Mayor Richard Vann of Murfreesboro; Dr. Bruce E. Whitaker, president of Chowan College; and publisher of the Roanoke Rapids Herald, Mr. Don Hall, president of the Association.

Publisher Henry Dennis of the Henderson Daily Dispatch, and one staff member; Dick Byrd of Carolina Power & Light CO., public relations, from Raleigh; Publisher C. G. Simons of the Gritton Times, and one staff member; Publisher Jack Rider of the Lenoir County News, and one staff member; Publisher Hal Tanner of the Goldsboro News-Argus, and three staff members; Publisher Eugene Smith of the Havelock Progress; Mrs. J. R. Grady, Publisher of the Duplin Times, Kenansville; General Manager Frank A. Daniels, Jr., Executive Editor Sam Ragan, and Woodrow Price editorial Staff, all from the News and Observer. Jim Wallace of Northampton County Times-News; Publisher Don Hall of the Roanoke Rapids

Herald, and one staff member; Wade Lucas of the Department of Conservation and Development, Raleigh; Mrs. Elizabeth G. Swindell, Publisher of the Wilson Daily Times; Publisher J. Mayon Parker of the Herald, and five staff members, Ahoskie; Cletus Brock, Publisher of the Tribune, Mt. Olive; several publishers' wives, and others, also enjoyed the luncheon.
