

MRS. WANDA EDWARDS

EVERYBODY PAYS ATTENTION during special campus activities.

Busy Chowan Nurse

She Gets Up With Chickens To Care for Chowanians

Mrs. Wanda Edwards, Chowan College's farming nurse, "lives on the farm and gets up with the chickens" to direct health services for Chowan's students, faculty and administration.

Caring for health on campus, she operates the Penny Infirmary under the supervision of local physicians. The ultramodern medical facility Mrs. Edwards operates has two floors of space and equipment, including treatment rooms and wards. Along with Dr. L. E. Barnhill and Dr. A. A. McLean, she just completed revising the list of approved medicines for students.

She keeps the infirmary open from 7:30 a.m. until 4:00 p.m. each day, commuting from the family farm near Boykins, Va. Before coming to Chowan, Mrs. Edwards served as office nurse for a surgeon. Her busy schedule somehow allows time to enjoy "kittens, dogs, chickens, pigs, calves and other farm animals you can think of."

"I'm strictly a country girl, born and raised on the farm," she explains, "and proud of it."

Her husband, Robert Edwards, is a life insurance agent with offices in Franklin, Va., and they have two children: Bruce and Debbie. She believes that, at Chowan College, she has found the ideal combination of pleasant country living and meaningful association with the life, growth and development of the college community. Her family also enjoys college life, attending special events at Chowan throughout the school year.

Nursing Students Visit Hospitals

Twenty-six Chowan students preparing for careers as medical secretaries were guests recently at hospitals in Greenville, Suffolk, Va., and Richmond, Va., as they prepared to choose hospitals where they will serve as interns.

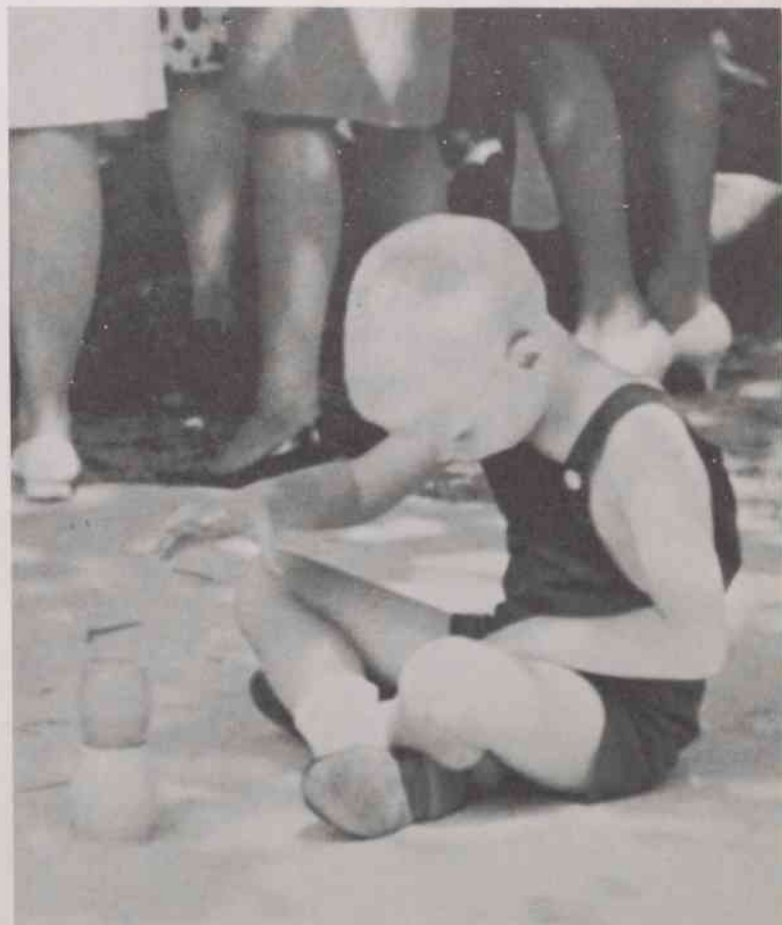

They toured facilities and health services at these hospitals as well as in surrounding communities.

Mrs. W. W. Edwards, Jr., professor in Chowan's Business Department, and Harvey W. Harris, Chowan's Director of College Public Relations, accompanied them.

Chowan's program, operated in cooperation with hospitals having medical secretarial internship programs, offers two years of intensive study in medical terminology, hospital procedures, medical records and other preparation for work in hospitals or for private physicians.

It is the only program of its kind in this area of northeastern North Carolina or southeastern Virginia.

WELL . . . ALMOST EVERYBODY — Will, five-year-old son of Coach and Mrs. Bill McCraw, finds some activities of his own.
