

Pat Paulsen Presents Platform

TV Personality In Humorous Program

Former Presidential candidate chats informally with students after performance in McDowell Columns.

Paulsen spent quite sometime after his performance signing autographs for many of the record crowd which viewed his performance.

"Pat Paulsen Looks at the 70's", a lecture as current as tomorrow's headlines, was delivered by the famed humorist at McDowell Columns on Thursday, November 18, before a record audience of Chowan College students, faculty, and friends of the college.

The lecture, which was described as an analytical look at the major problems affecting mankind in the next decade, dealt with such issues as the sexual revolution, drugs, astrology, religion, ecology, and politics. Each subject was supplemented with motion picture film and other visual aids.

Paulsen's appearance at Chowan College was part of a national college and university tour which will take the former presidential candidate to more than 100 campuses throughout the country.

This is Paulsen's first national tour since his "narrow defeat" in the 1968 presidential derby and is considered by many political pundits to be the forerunner of a full-blown campaign for the 1972 nomination by his "Straight Talking American Government (STAG) Party."

The lectures by the famous TV personality were conducted at 8:00 p. m. in the evening, and admission was free to Chowan College students. After the performance, Paulsen chatting for sometime informally with admirers who crowded the stage seeking autographs and to get a closer look at the performer.

Famous TV Personality Shows His "Colors."

Help Needy

A group of Chowan College students donated money for the purchase of three baskets of food to be distributed to needy families for Thanksgiving.

The students are residents of Mixon Hall, Stone Hall and Cottage no. 2. Mixon Hall officers, C. J. Bordeau, president, and Johnny Brown, secretary-treasurer, assisted head resident Paul Tuttle in soliciting the students. Each was requested to give a minimum of 35 cents. "The response was very good," Tuttle reported. "The students came through with flying colors."

Each basket contained a turkey, ham, assortment of fruit, and biscuits. Many of the students donated canned goods as well as money and they were included in the baskets.

Presenting his Presidential Platform for Nomination by the Straight Talking American Government (STAG).

Chowan Freshman Honored For Service to Church

A freshman at Chowan College, Jerry Linn, has been honored for his service as an assistant to the chaplain of the Protestant Chapel at the Camp Lejeune Marine Base in North Carolina.

As a senior acolyte, a volunteer position, Linn assisted in the services of the chapel. His duties included lighting candles and assisting with the offering and communion. Linn, whose father is stationed at Camp Lejeune, attended the chapel four years. The last 18 months he assisted the chaplain, U.S. Navy Cpt. George L. Martin.

In the performance of his responsibilities, Martin, in a letter to Chowan's president, Dr. Burce E. Whitaker, said that Linn "was most dependable, faithfully meeting all commitments for the various religious services."

Martin asked Chowan's president to present the Certificate of Service award to Linn on his behalf. Linn's early departure to Chowan for football practice had prevented Martin from making the presentation at the chapel. The certificate, signed by Martin, reads, "In grateful appreciation for your services in the furtherance of the Protestant Chapel Program as Acolyte."

Linn, 19 and a native of Frostburg, Md., reports that he enjoyed serving as senior acolyte and had high praise for Chaplain Martin. "He helped me in every way possible," Linn noted. "I could discuss my problems or whatever I wanted to with him," he added.

When Linn returns home on weekends, as he frequently does, he worships at the chapel. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald M. Linn, he starred in three sports, football, baseball and basketball, at Camp Lejeune High School. Another football Brave, Paul Black, also graduated from Camp Lejeune and Linn said that his father works with Black's. Both Black and Linn are quarterbacks and Black, sophomore, is a pitcher on the baseball team. Linn plays catcher and outfield and says, "I would like to be a coach some day because I like to work with younger people." He is majoring in liberal arts and plans to transfer to Presbyterian College in Clinton, S. C.

Riding on the freeway is like Russian roulette—you never know which driver is loaded.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Yule Music Presented

A program of Christmas music designed for the entire family was presented by the Chowan College Concert Choir on December 6 at the Roberts Village Center on Main Street in

Murfreesboro. The 40-minute program featured Christmas carols selected for their special appeal to children. Accompanying the choir, composed of 38 select singers, was Amy Barber