Results of Testing

Dana Clay Hollowell, a student from Colerain, discusses his results on the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator with Dean Clayton Lewis. The Myers-Briggs is a forced-choice questionnaire designed to identify psychological types according to the theory of C. G. Jung. "Results of the Myers-Briggs," said Dean Lewis, "are helpful to students as they consider their strengths and weaknesses and their values and interests." All first-time students who enrolled during 1978-79 were given an opportunity to respond to the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator. "All who responded to the instrument were given the results," said Dean Lewis.
