Choir takes annual tour

The Chowan College Touring Choir sang at seven churches in central and western North Carolina during its annual Spring Tour May 13-19.

The 16-member choir is directed by Dr. James Chamblee, chairman of the college's Fine Arts Department. The accompanist is Mrs. Barbara Gosnell.

The choir has toured extensively over the years in the eastern United States from Delaware to Florida. The choir is active throughout the academic year presenting annual December holiday and Spring Festival concerts. The choir also appears on the area television stations with a taped program of Christmas music.

Dr. Chamblee has directed the Chowan Touring Choir since 1959. He is a native North Carolinian and received his A.B. and Ph.D. in musicology from the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill and M.A. from Columbia University. He is the former director of Raleigh Oratorio Society and the University of North Carolina's summer choral organizations.

In addition to directing choral groups at Chowan, he is currently choir director at the Murfreesboro Baptist Church and directs a community chorus in Franklin, Va.

Guidance leads to profession

While some students will do anything to avoid chemistry studies, to Susanne Edwards, of Murfreesboro, they have been the key to unlocking her future career.

When Edwards entered Chowan in the fall of 1983, she said she had no idea what she wanted to do. Because she enjoyed science, she decided to enroll in a science curriculum.

Now, after taking general chemistry her freshman year under Mrs. Phyllis Dewar and organic chemistry this year under Dr. Garth Faile, she has decided to become a pharmacist. She said anatomy under Jim Dewar and other science courses have also influenced her to select pharmacy as a career.

She applied to pharmacy schools at the University of North Carolina and Medical College of Virginia and was accepted by both. She has decided to transfer to Chapel Hill in the fall and enroll in the three-year program leading to the bachelor of science in pharmacy. She said she may continue her studies to pursue a doctorate degree.

"I'd like to work in research with a pharmaceutical firm. I think that would be exciting," she remarked.

Although she must devote most of her time to her studies and laboratory work, Edwards has found time to serve as vice president of the Baptist Student Union/Campus Christian Fellowship and member of the Day Student Organization. She has been named to Phi Theta Kappa for academic achievement.

"I have enjoyed my science studies at Chowan very much," said the Ridgecroft graduate. "My professors have been very helpful."

Dr. Faile, chairman of the Department of Science, commented, "The fact that she has been accepted by the pharmacy schools at both the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and the Medical College of Virginia speaks well for Susanne. We're happy that Chowan has been able to provide her with an academic background in science and other studies to help prepare her for transfer to Chapel Hill and a future career as a pharmacist."
