Pridgen speaks at Conference

Dr. Allen Pridgen, professor of English, has been invited to deliver a paper entitled "The Language of Concern: Flannery O'Connor and Northrop Frye" at the tenth annual conference of the Philological Association of the Carolinas at Charleston, S.C. March 13-15.

The paper explores parallels between O'Connor's understanding of the purpose of literature and Frye's literary theory.

Commented Dr. Pridgen, "I have delivered several papers on O'Connor's fiction, and Frye's literary theory was the basis for my doctoral dissertation on Dante Gabriel Rossetti's poetry.

Frye is considered by many the most important literary theorist of this century and O'Connor's fiction (most published in the 1950's) is usually seen as among the best 20th Century American fiction, Pridgen noted.

He added, "My specialty in my doctoral program was 19th century British literature, but since completing the Ph.D. in 1975 I have pursued my scholarly interests in contemporary (post World War II) American poetry, fiction, literary theory, and popular culture.

Pridgen is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill (B.A.), East Carolina University (M.A.), and Florida State University (Ph.D.). He came to Chowan in 1979.
