

Complete course

and Mrs. Sidney Wallace White, Jr., Rt. 2, Edenton, is studying art education. She is a member of Edenton Baptist Church. Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Douglas Jones, Edenton, is studying accounting. They were among 20 students who completed the course.

Heading Graphic Arts Foundation

New officers of the Chowan Graphic Arts Foundation, Inc., review tentative plans for the next year following their election at the Foundation's annual meeting in Chapel Hill in late January. Guiding the work of the Foundation will be, left to right, Jack Andrews, Raleigh News and Observer, treasurer; Morgan Dickerman, III, The Wilson Daily Times, president; Joe M. Parker, Ahoskie News-Herald, vice-president; and Herman W. Gatewood, School of Graphic Communications, secretary. The Chowan Graphic Arts Foundation, composed of newspaper executives from throughout North Carolina, concentrates its work in supporting the educational program of Chowan's graphic communications department.
