Big Fire Was 9 Years Ago

Today is the ninth anniversary of Washington's big fire, which occurred September 13, 1900. The fire started on Water street, in O. B. Wyman's place of business, and burned to Main street, taking in both sides of Market street. The market house was destroyed and several buildings on Water street toward Haven's artist mill. Our citizens will recall this occasion with feelings of dread. Many thousands of dollars went up in the flames.

HAVE YOU EVER THOUGHT

of the facts in the case—that electric lights do not smoke up your walls and ceilings and ruin your pictures and bric-a-brac; that electric lights require no matches, thereby avoiding all danger of fire; that there is no smell or smoke with electricity; that electric lights do not consume any of the oxygen in the air, and therefore do not make you feel stupid and "good for nothing" after staying for a while in a closed room where it is turned on?

We have lots of other good points which we will be glad to explain if you will give us a chance, and the defects of our system are so small as to be practically negligible. Let's figure.
