WILLIAM R. HEARST

The entrance of William R. Hearst into the mayoralty fight in New York enlivens the situation and enables the people of that city to bring about reform in their government if they care to do so.

In his speech accepting the nomination Mr. Hearst said:

I do not wish to belittle the honest conservatives. To my mind the conservatives are merely Missourians—they want to be shown. They will act with us if we can convince them, and I believe that we progressives have absolutely proved our principles, and that the conservatives will accept our principles and stand beside us, ready to fight for the real issues in this campaign.

Mr. Hearst is naturally a progressive. He is ahead of his time in many respects. But some of his proposed reforms, radical as they once seemed, have been established, and others are in process of being established. He stands in a position where he can afford to take a long view of what he believes to be right. He is not a man of delay, but not destruction. In his case, and he has returned to the fray stronger than ever. Whether men agree with his views or not, they must acknowledge that Mr. Hearst is a stronger figure than ever before, and that he has the qualities in order to make each word in his public utterances in Washington count.

THE TIME TO ADVERTISE.

Nothing so profitable as an advertisement. The time, first and last, and all the time, is the time to advertise. It is the time when the advertiser will be doing the best for his business. So the advertiser must wait till the busy season comes and his store is so full of customers that he can't get his hat off, and then he makes it the printer and goes in for advertising. When the dull season comes along and there is no trade and he wants to sell goods so bad he can't pay his rent, he stops advertising. That is, some do, but occasionally a good headed merchant does more of it, and keeps in all the business while his neighbors are struggling to make ends meet. There are times when you couldn't stop people from buying everything in the store if you planted a cannon behind the door, and that's the time when the advertisement is sent out on its holy mission. It makes light work for advertising, for a chalk sign on the sidewalk could do all that was needed, and a half-holiday six days in a week. Advertisements are built to do hard work, and should be sent out in full days, when a customer has to be knocked down with hard facts, and kind, inexpressible with bankrupt reductions, and dragged in with a net of a hundred of prices, before he will spend a cent. That's the end and aim of advertising, and if ever you open a

WHAT BECAME OF THE CLERMONT?

The final whereabouts of the historic vessel remains a mystery. It has been asserted that she was finally transported as the Henrietta to the Cape Fear River, North Carolina, where Fulton himself as early as 1813 had suggested the formation of a steam navigation company.

THE KERFEW LAW.

We have often thought it would be a good plan for every town to have a kerfew bell. We see so many small boys walking the streets at night, smoking cigarettes, using profane language, and forming evil associations. It would be much better for them to be at home. In speaking of a kerfew bell, the State Democrat says:

"A kerfew bell ought to ring in every city, and boys under sixteen required to be in their homes at least by 9 o'clock at night. It is strange that some mothers manifest so much interest in reforming men, a large number of whom are not worth a button, and are so indifferent to their own boys."—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

Well said. The Daily News heartily endorses the above sentiment and gives it space gladly. If such a law was enacted applying to the whole State the General Assembly could do nothing better. Boys of tender years allowed to roam the streets all hours of the night, and their parents in ignorance of their whereabouts, is a stain upon those into whose keeping they are placed. We shudder for the future of such boys. Loitering on the street corners, hearing all kinds of vice and vulgarity, instead of being home under good wholesome influences. Every town in North Carolina should have a kerfew law and see that it is rigidly enforced. If the parents of boys don't know where they are after dark, let the law step in and compel them to know. We must guard and protect the boys—they will some day be our men.

ENTERTAINING A PREJUDICE.

Of all the occupations known to men, entertaining a prejudice is the most absurd. Yet the practice is almost universal. The prejudice is usually invited. He comes in quietly removes his hat and coat, saunters up to the guest chamber, and prepares to become a permanent feature of the establishment. You entertain him royally, strain him to your bosom, exhibit him proudly to every one, fight for him, defend him, and perpetuate him. Yet you do not even admit that he is present. "I entertain a prejudice," you say, with becoming concern. "None."

Directs of a feather flock together. If therefore happens that if there is one prejudice present, there are also others. They always come in unawares, and take their places silently and unobtrusively. But oh, how they come together in an argument! A group of prejudices is invincible. The strange part of prejudices is that they are so contagious. They would never be more expeditious quarters. But when they are. They don't mind the quarters. They close the latter. Prejudices are always busy. If they are not busy with one's eyesight

Cyclone Sweeps Over the South.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 14.—That a destructive storm of wind and hail swept over west and middle Tennessee and north Alabama early tonight, is evidenced by the fact that no communication of any character can be had with those sections. Telegraph and telephone wires are down and reports from small towns in the extreme western counties of Tennessee state that a severe wind storm occurred at 6 o'clock tonight, unroofing houses, leveling telegraph poles and doing other damage. No loss of life is reported from these points.

There were no evidences of the storm in Memphis other than a sudden drop in the temperature. The town of Denmark, Tenn., has been wrecked, two persons were killed, several are known to have been injured and others are missing as a result of tonight's storm, according to a dispatch received here late tonight. It says the ruins of the town are burning.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 14.—A severe electrical storm passed over this city shortly after 7 o'clock this evening. Telephone and street car service were badly hampered for an hour or more.

At Hixon, ten miles from Chattanooga, three inches of hail fell and reports say the damage is extensive. Cleveland, Tenn., 28 miles from Chattanooga, reports the most damaging hail and wind storm in years.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 14.—A storm amounting almost to a tornado passed over sections of Tennessee about 7 o'clock tonight. Al Barnes, a prominent citizen of Denmark, Madison county, was killed, and Mrs. Barnes badly hurt. Their home was wrecked. Tom Hixson was killed in Lincoln county near Mulberry, and Homer Ashby and wife severely hurt. Carter Arnold, returning home from Wood at Wartrace, was caught in the storm and has not been heard from. Many residences were wrecked in Tennessee. The grandstand at the Tennessee Valley Fair Grounds where the fair is in progress, at Huntsville, Ala., was demolished, and half of the stables on the ground were wrecked.
