At Caesarea Governor Pellx kept in the couse of the cell of the cel him two whole years in military cus tody. To be sure he was not con-fined in prison, neither was he out on bail, but he was put in the care of a soldier who was held responsible a soliter who was held responsible for him when wanted. At the end of that period Felix, the governor, was himself called to Rosme to answer complaints against his administration, and a new ruler. Festus, was appoint and a few ruler, yestus, was appointed in his place. Three days after assuming office Festus went to Jerusalem on his first visit, and the very first complaint that he leard was this old trouble about Paul. The crafty knaves who had planned the first cor spiracy, asked that the apostle might

Appeal to Caesar,

At this preliminary bearing Paul, who has come to the conclusion that he cannot hope for a fair trial in Judea, falls back upon his rights as a Roman citizen, and appeals unto Caesar. The pronunciation of the single word Appello, was sufficient to transfer all further proceedings from the provincial tribunal to the Emperor.

the provincial tribunal to the Emperor.

While the governor waited an opportunity to forward his prisoner, he was visited by his royal neighby Agrippa, and his sister Bernice, Herod Agrippa II, was a Jew. His father, Herod Agrippa II, was a Jew. His father, Herod Agrippa II, in this very city of Caesarea had died a tragic death, eaten alive by worms. He was the grandson of that Herod who had be headed John the Baptist, and the great grandson of the Herod who slew the children of Bettlehenat the birth of Christ. Therefore, he hailed with delight the opportunity of seeing and hearing the most brilliant teacher and preacher that christianity had produced. Accordingly a brilliant addience gathered in the judgment hall, and Paul was given the opportunity of telling the story of his conversion to christianity.

grace Paul comes at once to the point at issue. He puts the whole charge into a nutshell. His themes had thrown a great doal of cust into the eyes of his judges in abeir frantic ef-forts to get rid of him, but Paul in a single sentence goes straight to the heart of the matter, and affirms that it is on account of the hope held by Judged. It was the great promise of the Old Testament, viz., the coming of the Messiah. The whole Jewish na tion believed God's promise of Mes-siah, and looked and longed for it. And the only reason for their butted And the only reason for their hatte and persecution of Paul was the fa-that he taught that Jeaus of Nazaret whom they had crucified, was the

Dodging the Truth.

Dodging the Truth.

Both Paul's auditors are mixed, but both in a different way dodge responsibility. Festus, the heather, can account for the apostle's earnestness in no other way than on the ground of a "brain storm." He cries out, "Much theological study has turned your head." And Agrippa, the zealous Jew, sneeringly says, "With but little persuasion thou wouldat 'ain make me a christian." (Revised Version). The Roman official scoffed in one way, the uterrigent of the proposed in another. But they both dodged the truth.

Paul is not the only man who truth.

Paul is not the only man who has been stigmatized as a hunatic. Dwight L. Moody was nicknamed "Crazy Moody" before the world came to recognize the method of his madness. If there were made crazy people, after the pattern of Paul, in the christian church today, the world ple, after the pattern of Paul, in the christian church to-day, the world would alt up and take notice. The knees of corrupt judges would knock together again with Feils, and new Agrippas, hard, selfish, bigoted, would again feel the force of the spiritual earnestness of the soldiers of the cross. If modern disciples felt as profoundly the revolutionary doctrine of the birth, life, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ, there would be a mighty host of believers ready to cry out, with the apostle. "I would to God, that whether with little or with much, not thou only, but also all that hear me this day, might become such as I am."
