THE APPLE-GIRL'S FRIEND

Mary was not an unattractive Washington girl, and the perpetually sad expression of her face caused all who saw her to give her more than a passing notice, and to this fact are due the details of this little romantic story.

One bleak Wintry day a gentleman happened to look out on the street from his office window and saw a man—examining a basket of apples held by a little girl, but instead of purchasing the man passed on. To compensate the child for her disappointment he called to her, bought some apples and told her to come every day and he would buy from her.

In this way he became acquainted with her history. She was an orphan and was selling apples to support herself. Among her customers was Gen. Grant, who lived on 17th street, as she told her new-found friend, who was the late Mr. D. R. Swingle, in charge of the internal revenue blank room, Treasury Department. Swingle bought apples from Mary every day, became interested in her, supplied her with pens, ink and paper, set copies for her and taught her to write.

In their early acquaintance she had told Mr. Swingle, in connection with the fact that Gen. Grant bought apples from her, that he once said to her: "Mary, if I ever become President I shall give you an appointment."

Some years later, when Mary was about fifteen and Gen. Grant had become President, in her daily visits to Mr. Swingle's office, he said to her: "Mary, you are getting too large now to be selling apples on the street."

"Yes," she replied, "but what shall I do and see the President, and remind him of my promise. Here—I will write you a card and you take it right up to him."

The card was written, and little sad-faced Mary wended her way trembling to the White House, where she delivered the card to a messenger, who delivered it to the President. The card read:

"MARY McCARTHY,
 The little girl who used to sell you apples."

Without waiting to tell the messenger to admit the visitor, the President came out, shook her hand cordially, said he remembered her, and asked what he could do for her.

"General," she began, "I am getting too big to sell apples on the streets, and—"

"Yes, you are," the President interrupted. "I thought I would come and remind you of the promise."

"I distinctly remember the promise, too, and it shall be done. I shall write right away. In which department do you wish to go."

The bureau of engraving and printing, please."

"Very well, come back Thursday, and bring a card just like this," holding her card in his hand.

Mary thanked him, returned to Mr. Swingle, told him what the President had said, and then went out to dispose of her remaining stock of apples. But she had scarcely time to make a sale before some one approached her, asked if she were Mary McCarthy, gave her a letter, and returned toward the White House.

Engraving of the proceedings, for no explanation of the letter was given. Mary hurried to Mr. Swingle's office, and found that he had landed him the thousand letter. On reading the contents Mr. Swingle told her that it was her appointment. And so it was. The President had not waited for Mary to return Thursday, but had the appointment made out at once, and sent his messenger out to find her and deliver it.

 Condensed Items of Interest Happening Throughout the State.

Tobacco sales for last week on the Wilson market aggregated 620,000 pounds; less than for the preceding week. It is expected that there will be no more big weeks this season as many of the farmers have already sold their entire crop. The total sales for this season today passed the eleven million pound mark.—Wilson Times.

Frank a shot gun with which to strike his seven-year-old son, Calvin Hinton, a negro, who, with his family, lived on the plantation of Mr. C. L. Hinton, eight miles east of Raleigh, killed himself Sunday afternoon. The death of the man is described by his widow who was present with her two children. She says that about two o'clock Sunday afternoon that her husband, Calvin Hinton, became angered at his seven-year-old son. Picking up a shot gun he struck at the boy with it, when the gun was discharged, tearing off the top of the man's head. Hinton was about 35 years old and is said by those who know him to have been a quiet, hard working negro.—News and Observer.

Friday-afternoon at 1:22 o'clock, Mr. J. A. Davis made an attempt to jump off the A. C. L. train at the junction near the Ayden Lumber Co., and when he jumped he lost his footing and was hurled into the ditch by the roadside. He was seen by passengers who had the train stopped. Mr. Davis was first thought to be very badly hurt but the doctors think now that he is not seriously injured.—Greenville Reflector.

Saturday night a company of three men entered the store of the Union Woolen mills on North Tryon street. Two of them purchased a suit of clothing each. When they had departed it was discovered that an extra suit and a coat were missing. An officer was sent where they lived and the stolen articles, it is said, were found underneath the house of John W. Self, one of the trio. He was arrested and the capture of the other two, Jim Self and another man, was not long in following. Mr. A. F. McNeill made the complaint. The three will be tried this morning and an effort made to locate the blame.—Charlotte Observer.

This afternoon the old order and traditions of one magistrate's court will change and give way to another plan for the meeting of justice and the taking of evidence. Shades of the great curbs and legal lights will awake and take notice. Magistrate James at the hour of three will hold court in Summerton, one of the suburbs of this metropolis, and listen to the evidence of the famous Temple alley matter. This was ordered last week and that all may have a better view of the actual conditions and get the local story in more ways than one. So, Monday at the hour of 3 with all the dignity of the Supreme Court Mr. James will sit on a stump.

It is understood that the sum of $5000 has been set aside for the purpose of the opening of Temple alley to proceed with the changes. The hearing began last week but continued to give the resumed further time to secure evidence. It is contended by Squire Gilmore, a noted patriarch of that suburb, that Temple alley should not be closed and he has asked fifty dollars damages from Mr. E. W. Jakes for closing the same. Through his attorney, H. S. McCall, he will strive to show by witnesses that the alley closed some time ago has been in use as a street for more than twenty years. The attorney said yesterday that one of the reasons court would hold there is that old residents who have become so old and infirm living there that they cannot come in town may have a chance to testify.—Asheville Citizen.

 TO OUR TELEPHONE SUBSCRIBERS:

In order to obtain satisfactory telephone service, it is necessary for our subscribers to observe the instructions printed on the instruction cards tacked on to the various telephones. A great many of the subscribers are placing their receivers on the hooks before they complete their conversation and by doing this the operator gets the disconnecting signal which requires that she take down the connection, which will of course prevent you from completing your conversation with whom you were originally talking.
 It is also desired that you place your hands close to the transmitter and not near the receiver when you are talking with whom you desire connection slowly and distinctly, calling the numbers by digits instead of the usual way. As example if you desire to communicate with telephone No. 221, call the number double two, two. The operator will then repeat the number back to you to assure you that she has heard the order correctly and will then make the desired connection. Do not ask questions of the operator, but call for the chief operator for information. The operators will be too busy answering calls of the subscribers to spend any considerable time in connection with your telephone to answer questions that can be just as well answered by the chief operator.
 There is still some additional outside work to be done in connection with the lines of those subscribers located outside of the corporate limits and outside of what is known as the cable district. It is necessary to string additional wires from the end of the cables to the subscribers' stations on these outlying districts in order to reduce the amount of trouble to a minimum. Should you have trouble, however, in using your telephone or find that it is not working satisfactorily, do not hesitate to call the chief operator or Mr. Bell, our local manager, notifying him of the fact, and the matter will then be given prompt attention.
