Refrigerators

We have just received our splendid line of

“White Mountain” Refrigerators

—“the chest with a chill in it”—in solid stone lined, white enameled and plain, which we are offering at economic prices. You must bear in mind it is not the cheapest refrigerator which saves, but the one which saves ice the best. A White Mountain will use less ice and retain more cold air than any other refrigerator on the market. We sell them on a guarantee to suit or money back.

RENTING A BRIDAL VEIL.

An incident of a Fashionable Wedding in New York.
Not long ago one of the wealthiest "charge customers" of a well-known department store in New York purchased a $500 wedding veil for her daughter, which was charged to her account and duly delivered. The wedding was a large one and celebrated at high noon in one of the downtown churches.

It happened that one of the girls from a department store went out for luncheon at this hour and seeing a fashionable wedding in full swing slipped into the church with the crowd, and into one of the back pews. After the ceremony was over she hurried back to her place behind the counter, too busy with her special sales to even think about it.

The next morning, however, when she read an account of the "magnificent wedding in — church and a detailed description of the wonderful veil worn by the bride, valued at $500," she laughingly told her numerous friends in that department that she "had been one of the honored guests and had seen that $500 veil with her own eyes." Just at this thrilling point of her story one of the door men stepped up to her and said:

"You are wanted at the manager's office, Miss B."

As she entered the office, to her perfect amazement, she beheld the identical bridal veil just under discussion.

"Miss B., can you tell me if you ever saw this veil before?" asked the manager.

"Yes, sir. I saw it yesterday."

"Where did you see it?"

"I saw it from my pocket the clipping from the morning newspaper with the account of the great wedding, the costly veil and the attire of the bride. Laying it upon the desk, she said:

"It was my luncheon hour, and I went to the wedding instead of to lunch."

"The manager smiled.
"Can you positively identify this veil as the one you saw yesterday?"

"Miss B. took it up in her hands and, unfolding it, ran her fingers through the mesh and into the tiny folds where the orange blossoms were caught, then with some difficulty picked out three little pieces of rice and handed them to the manager."

She went back to her counter, and the "charge customer," whose accounts ranged in the thousands each year, was rendered a bill for $500 for the use of a bridal veil worn by her daughter."

A check for the $500 was immediately sent, and the wealthy "charge customer" still continues to charge.—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Powerful Weapon.

They were examining an old-fashioned shotgun of murderous build. It looked as if it would be an effective weapon against anything short of an elephant, and its owner was boasting with that scorn of fact which is allowed the successful hunter of his power.

"Doesn't it kick like anything?" asked one.
"Oh, yes, it kicks some," said the proprietor, "but that's the beauty of it. Why, once I shot at a grizzly that was charging me. I missed him, and on he came. If it had not been that the gun kicked me so far back that I had time to reload I shouldn't have been here to tell the story."—Youth's Companion.

The Amen of Nature.

Do you ever wonder why poets talk so much about flowers? Did you, ever hear of a poet who did not talk about them? Do you know of a poet who, for the sake of being original, should leave them out? Would he like those verses where the letter a or e or some other is omitted? No; they will bloom over and over again in poems as in the summer fields, to the end of time, always old and always new. Why should we be more shy of repeating ourselves than the spring be tired of blossoms or the night of stars? Look at nature. She never wears of saying over her floral pattern. In the crannies of cyclopean walls, in the dust where men lie, dust also; on the mounds that bury huge cities, the Birs Nemrud and the Babel heap, still that same sweet prayer and benediction. The amen of nature is always a flower.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

The First Fork.

The first fork? The fork, as a matter of fact, did not appear as a table implement until the seventeenth century, though as early as the thirteenth century gold and silver ones were made for special purposes. The ordinary diner was only provided with a trencher, a napkin and a spoon. For knife he used his own, which he carried about, and, worse, there was no second trencher, no second spoon. When the several courses came along he exercised his ingenuity and mopped his trencher with his bread. His spoon—well, we ourselves lick postage stamps.—London Chronicle.

Compacting Notes.

Mrs. Blowsy—My husband's so lazy that if it was for me I don't believe he would get up in time to go to bed. Mrs. Howder—My husband's different. He scarcely goes to bed in time to get up.

Will Wonders Never Cease

It is Creating a Great Reaction in Many Localities.
Many people are now going to Hardy's drug store to learn all they can of the new remedy that is creating so much talk, and newspaper comment. Scores of people throughout the state have been cured of rheumatism with the new remedy. And testimonials continue to be received from every direction in rapid succession. Here in Washington and vicinity numbers of people are taking the remedy and many of them are praising it very highly, although they have been using it but a short while. While the demonstrations were being conducted at Greensburg, Ind., J. W. Boyle, of 116 East Washington street, said: "My wife has been using Root Juice and it is doing wonders for her. Before taking the remedy she had a very bad stomach. The lightest food would sour on her stomach and cause it to burn and pain her very much; in fact, she said she felt like it was raw from top to bottom. Recently her trouble was aggravated by an attack of the la grippe. Her appetite was very poor, but after taking the juice a few days her appetite returned and she now digests everything she eats without the least pain or inconvenience. She is no longer weak and nervous, but seems like a new woman. There medly has proved a wonderful blessing to her." In fact, so many people are talking about the new remedy and telling of so much wonderful good it is doing that people are going to Hardy's drug store in numbers to get some of the wonderful medicine.

O. K'D BY THE YELLOW ONE.

First thing anybody knows William Randolph Hearst will embarrass both President Taft and Former President Roosevelt. He went right out of the White House yesterday, fell willingly into the hands of the waiting reporters, endorsed the Taft administration, in the same way that one would expect a Republican stand-patter in good and regular standing to endorse it, and said the spectacular and "showy Roosevelt" had found the country in the height of prosperity and left it in the depths of adversity. He does not think Mr. Taft will conclude his term with a panic; of his own making.

All of which may be lacking in neither pith nor point, but it sounds strange coming from a man who is at the head of a political organization all his own, with alleged political principles which he says cannot be reconciled with the Republican platform upon which Mr. Taft says he is firmly and vehemently standing.

A few days since Mr. Hearst, through his John Temple Graves, invited the Democracy to come over with all its goods and chattels, into the Independence League, and fight its future battles under the Evening Journal banner, all conditions of the transfer to be imposed by Hearst. The Democracy has appeared strangely unappreciative, with the result that the Hearst yellows will probably continue to blow cold on Democratic nominees.

Oil Yourself.

An old Quaker was once visited by a garrulous neighbor, who complained that he had the "worst servants in the world, and every body seemed to conspire to make him miserable. "My dear friend," said the Quaker, "let me advise you to oil yourself a little." "What do you mean?" said the irritated old gentleman. "Well," said the Quaker, "I had a door in my house some time ago that was always creaking on its hinges, and I found that everybody avoided it, and although it was the nearest way to most of the rooms, yet they went round some other way. So I just got some oil, and after a few applications it opened and shut without a creak or jar, and now all go to that door and use the old passage." Just oil yourself a little with the oil of kindness. Occasionally praise your servants for something they do well. Encourage your children more than you scold them, and you will be surprised to find that a little sunshine will warm out a lot of fog, and a little molasses is better than a great lot of vinegar."

Some people would rather join the crowd than go to heaven. All that remind us of what we want is: They think they feel that.
