The Restaurant Piccolo.
 Writing from Dresden, an American says: "There is at least one thing in a German restaurant for which one would look in vain in our country. That is the piccolo. You may think that I mean a musical instrument and that any orchestra in any country might have one of these, but you are wrong. My piccolo, the one at the restaurant, is a human being. He is a boy twelve to fifteen years old, who assists the regular waiters. He wears the regulation waiter's costume and looks funny in his spiketail coat. He is as solemn as a funeral, knows how to extract a tip and for the high privilege of retaining his place and taking his first course as a waiter must endure the abuse of the hands of the best waiters and his underlings. He is a boy who follows, this piccolo, who because of his appearance could never pass for an our country."—New York Tribune.

USING POULTRY MANURE.
 Three Farmers Express Opinions About Its Value as Fertilizer.
 The following opinions concerning the use of poultry manure were gathered by the Orange Judd Farmer:
 "As poultry manure is the richest and most valuable farm fertilizer I take special care of it. The most profitable way I have found in disposing of it is to use it as a top dressing for grass. It is also especially valuable for onions and newly set strawberry plants. Corn and nearly all garden crops do well with it. It is especially available for the use of plants. I never mix it with wood ashes or anything that contains lime, because lime sets free the nitrogen in the form of ammonia. Sifted road ashes are not objectionable, nor is gypsum. Sand and loam are useful; dry muck is especially so."—Henry R. Ingalls, Greene County, N. Y.
 "I have applied several hundred bushels of poultry manure mixed with twice its bulk of stable manure in the fall or early spring to corn land that was badly run down. The result was a yield at the rate of eighty-three bushels of corn to the acre. I have also used considerable poultry manure on the garden, but here it should be applied in the fall and harrowed or disked in to give best results. If applied in the spring it often burns the plants. My best results have come on the corn. In my estimation it is much better than any complete fertilizer costing $24 to $30 a ton, provided it is kept dry by being mixed, as made, with ranch or other good absorbent."—Fred Grandy, Greene County, Ill.
 "Every day I sprinkle the dropping loads in my poultry house with sifted road ashes and clean them of every morning. The manure has secured is spread on the garden in preference to every other fertilizer. My garden bears those of all my neighbors."—E. B. Leek, Suffolk County, N. Y.

Created a New Word.
 It was the third Earl Spencer who added a word to the language in consequence of a wager. The bet was that by cutting off the tail part of his overcoat he would bring into fashion overcoats so short that the skirts of the undercoat would show beneath. He won his wager, and "spencer" became the name both of that garment and of the feminine one afterward constructed in its likeness. The phrase has added more than one name to the terminology of costume. Everybody knows "Wellingtons" and the tillycock hat is said by some to be really "Billy Coler" from Coler of Norfolk, earl of Leicester. But none of these examples in the sphere of clothes rivals what the Earl of Sandwich did when he contrived the slice of meat between bread as a device to enable him to go on gambling without leaving off for a meal.—London Chronicle.

Getting Acquainted.
 "We hesitated about renting this place," said the woman who had just moved in, "until we learned that the families on both sides of us owned their houses. It is so unpleasant to live where the people next door are always changing and you never know what kind of neighbors you are going to have."
 "Yes," responded the woman on the other side of the fence. "That's one reason why we're trying to sell our house."—Chicago Tribune.

The Swish of the Rod.
 A college president in an address on pedagogy said:
 "And one of the most remarkable changes in the last thirty years of teaching is the abolition of corporal punishment. A boy of this generation is never whipped. But boys of the last generation must have believed that their instructors all had far motto:
 "The swish is better to the taught."

A GREAT TRIP FOR THE WINNER

The Daily News is of the same opinion today as yesterday when it intimated that if the male sex could only get into the contest to tour Europe the voting from the very first would have been at fever heat, but things are looking up from the ladies' side of the house just the same. Votes are crowding in on the contest manager all the while and the readers of this paper can rest assured his task assorting them, giving proper credits, etc., is no job to be evaded. But we are digressing. If a reader does not believe the menfolk are becoming enthused in the Daily News contest all one has to do is to just hint the trip and the rest—well, just suppose you mention it yourself. But don't discard the fact the women are enthused—you can bet your life they are. When they are aroused on any measure or scheme dollars to doughnuts the thing is a success right from the start.

In this European trip to four young ladies free of cost, there is no "ifs" and "ands." It's free from the time your feet press the car floor in Washington until you feel terra firma again at the starting point. Great trip, historically and educationally and the young ladies who win in the contest are going to be the envy of more than one—see if they are not.

A Daily News man in making his rounds today for items had the pleasure of talking to several gentlemen in reference to what this paper is going to do for the young ladies in this section of the state. All interviewed were loud in their praise of the effort being made and they all were a unit as to the advantages to be derived therefrom. Congressman John H. Small said of the trip:
 "There is no intelligent person who has the opportunity, who would not gladly make a European trip. There is scarcely one of the countries of Europe, including Great Britain, which would not amply repay a journey across the water. Its ancient cities with their historic buildings, and their art treasures offer a constant temptation to the American to pay them a visit. I wish I could make the trip, and I envy the fortunate party who are to make this trip as the guests of the Daily News."
 Mr. Seth Bridgman, president of the Bank of Washington and one of our most honored and highly esteemed citizens, stated that "the trip being offered to the four young ladies by the Washington Daily News was worth more to them than years of schooling and fortunate would be the young lady who was successful."
 Mayor C. H. Sterling said "that the very fact of the trip itself was educational." It is an offer no woman who desired information could afford not to work for.

A Bright Student.
 During a recent examination in the theology of the Old Testament the following question was asked a young clergyman: "What language did Balaam's ass speak?" After a moment of thought a smile flashed across his face, and he wrote his answer. I looked at the paper. He had written, "Assyrian."—Lippincott's.

$500 FOR THREE DAYS' WORK
 How it Paid a Kansas Boy to Use Diskers Before Plowing Wheat.
 Last year the extension department of the Kansas State Agricultural college issued a circular urging diskers wheat immediately following the header, to be plowed two or three weeks later. Most of the farmers thought this would be too much trouble for the increase in yield it might bring, but a boy in Edwards county persuaded his father to let him have thirty acres on which to try that plan. His older brother also had thirty acres adjoining his field, which he put in in the ordinary way, the same as his father did 1,000 acres. The soil was the same, the seed wheat was the same, and the rainfall was the same.
 The only factor that differed in the history of the crop was the diskings of the wheat stubble immediately after the header. Yet the wheat thrashed out forty-six bushels and ten pounds to the acre for the ground that had been so treated, and the brother's yield was only twenty-five bushels. That was about the average for the 1,000 acres of the farm also. Wheat at 90 cents would pay the boy who disked before time to plow about $500 for three days' work.

Transplanting.
 Transplanting such vegetables as tomatoes and cabbage is of value in making the plants stocky and in developing the root system. In transplanting care should be taken not to break too many roots. If the ground is moistened before the plants are taken up the dirt will cling to the roots and few of them will be broken. The garden trowel is the best implement with which to take up plants for transplanting. The same instrument may be used to make the hole in which the plants are to be placed. See that the roots are spread out well and not all compacted in one bunch. Transplanting in the garden had better be done toward evening or on a cloudy day to prevent wilting. If the ends of part of the leaves are pinched off evaporation will be checked and the plant's chance for living through the operation improved. A little water poured into the hole will help if the soil is dry. A piece of paper placed over each plant and held down with clods for the first day or so will help them to get a start.

Dairy Products Worth $1,000,000,000.
 According to the last year book of the department of agriculture, there are 21,720,000 milk cows in the United States, and these are worth $702,945,000. The magnitude of the industry can perhaps be best understood when it is considered that these cows produce yearly about $1,000,000,000 worth of dairy products.

Muslin Window For Cow Stable.
 Cows should not stand facing a window unless the window be covered with muslin. By the way, the muslin window in a cow stable is better by far than glass. It gives a subdued light and furnishes ideal ventilation.
